At the top of his lungs, Jarrod Silva cheered the JV football team on to another victory. "Cheering the (football) team is important to help boost morale. Enthusiasm is contagious," said Jarrod. The thunderous roar from the crowds on Friday nights did not come from a single person, rather, they came from all who attended who contributed to Armijo's Voice.

If you've ever gone to speak and the whole world was listening; you must live in a perfect world. If you have ever gone to scream about closed campus lunches, the environment or ID badges and no one was there to listen, welcome to reality.

It's in your convictions, how you grew up, what you know and what you regret. It's not what your parents want you to be (a doctor, in bed by 11 p.m. or just like them) or what your teachers want you to be (awake in class). It's not even about what your friends think (you can be so weird sometimes). It does not matter how good your best is for anyone else but yourself. Learn to trust the voice inside of you (whether it is in your mind or your heart), because what it has to say will leave you happier off.

The Gap khakis and the FUBU shirts were transformed to purple and gold and the classroom voices turned into loud shrieks and shrills when it came to Armijo pride. Not focusing on standards set in the past, we took advantage of the chance to get a little crazy in front of the girl next door and the thrill of showing off to that cute guy two rows back. Packing the stands so tight that you were uncomfortable or getting a little too friendly with the person next to you, had a way of making students get pumped at the games. The thunderous sounds of the crowd will never be silenced from our

Spirit

In an effort to break stereotypes, students had to go above and beyond the expectations. While working under pressure, we made it through the Spanish I final and the college applications. Showing we have goals and hopes for our future, we tried to plan ahead and had to suffer the consequences when we procrastinated. Our idea of a club changed from "Girl's rule and Boys drool," and "No Girls Allowed," into joining together to unite our opinions helping our school and our community. Pushing ourselves to our limits, we learned to expand our

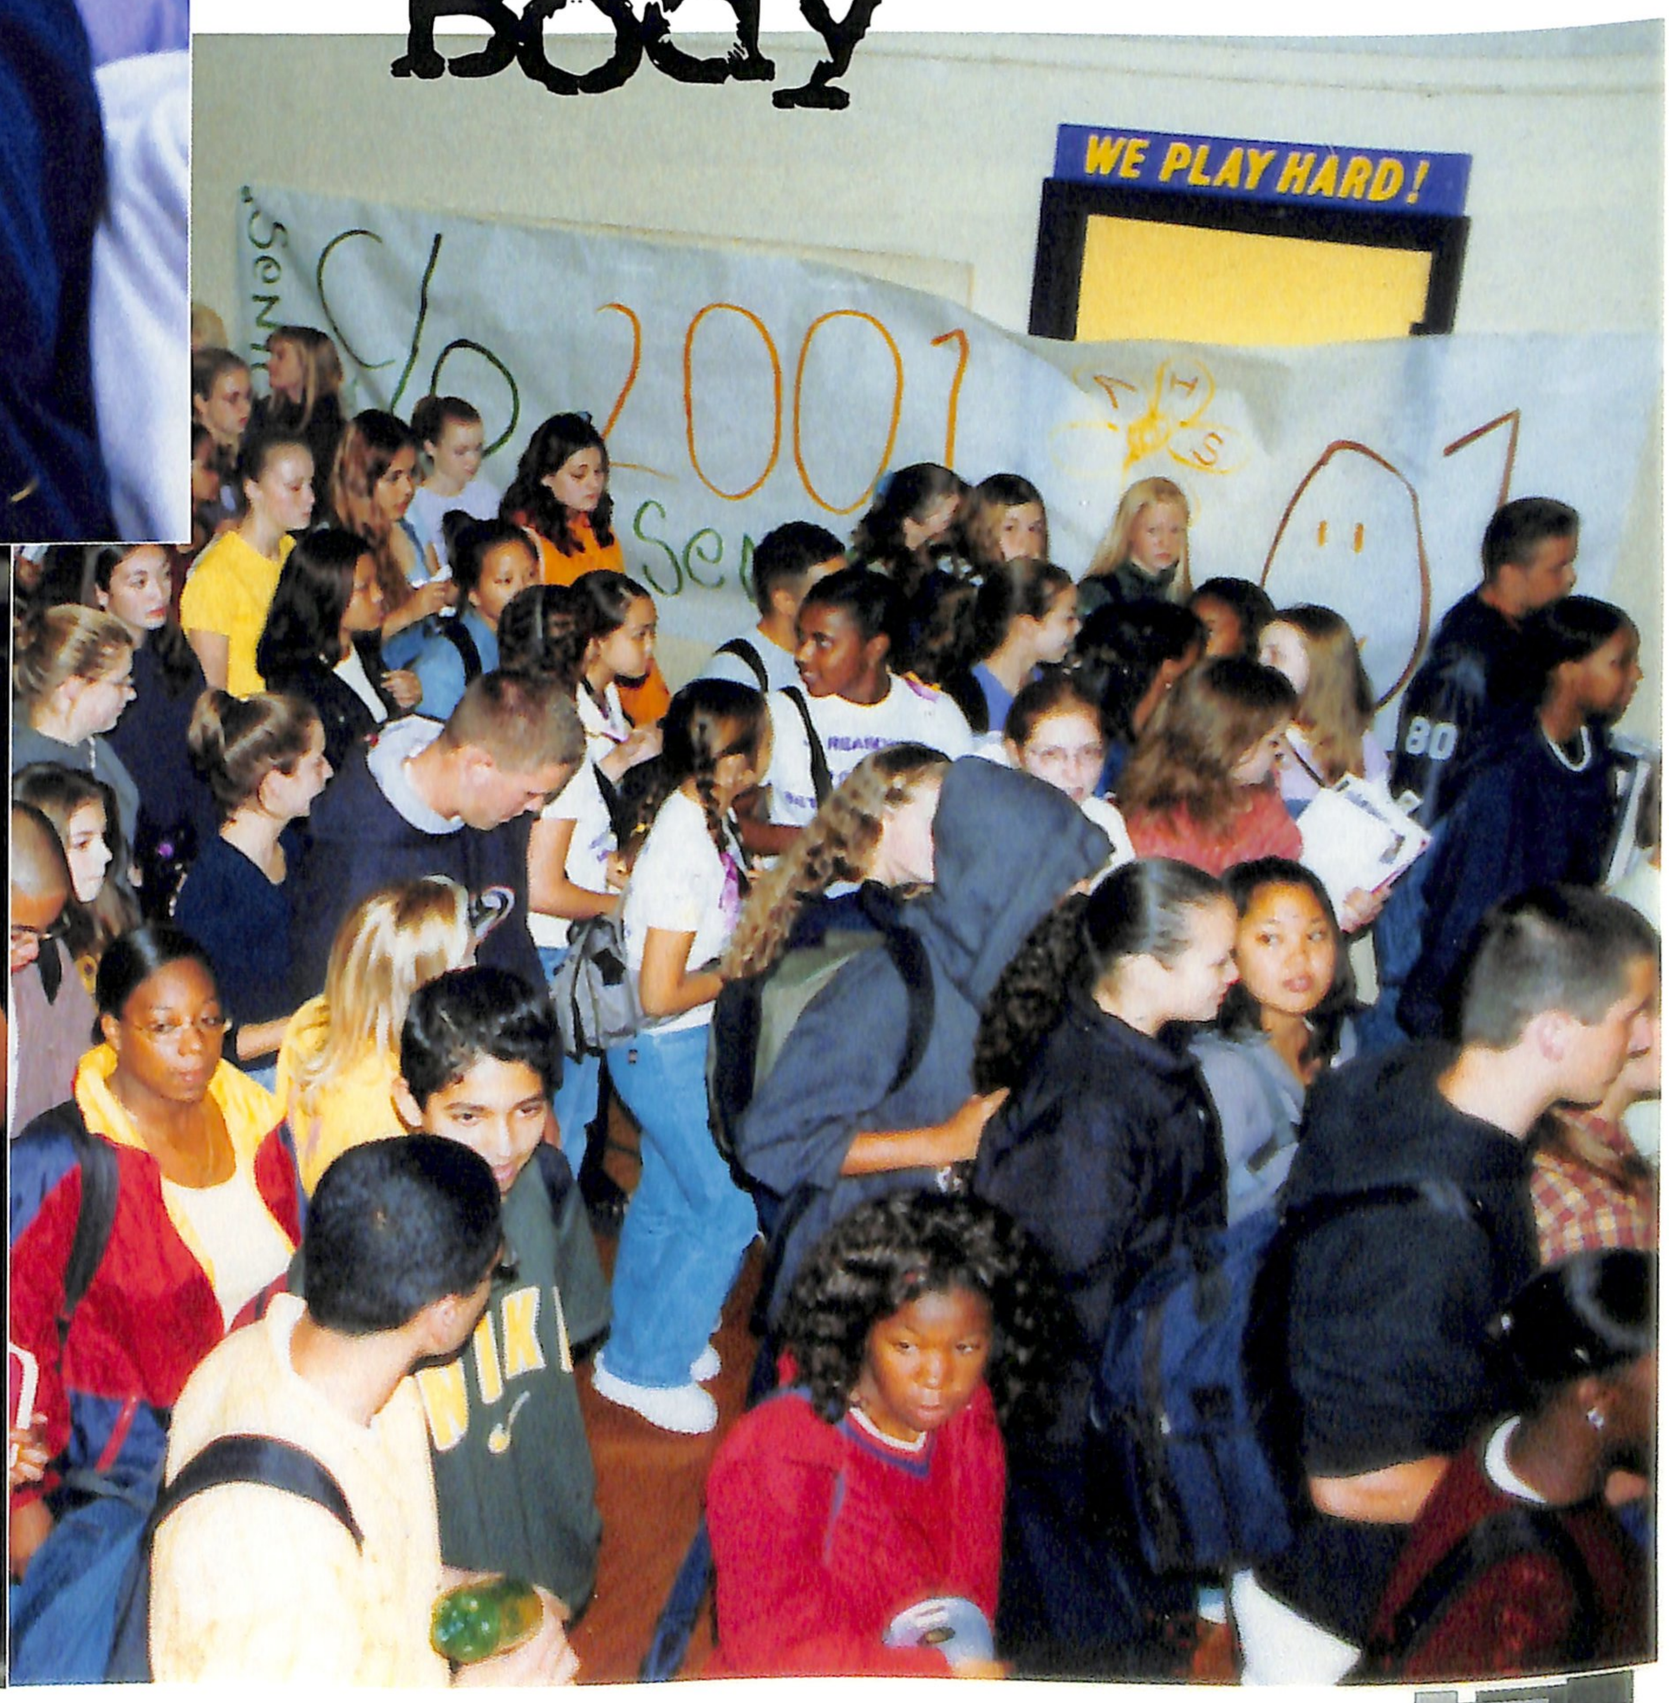

Mind

We are the students who embodied Armijo High School. We shouted to be heard. Forced to stand out and make our own decisions, we would no longer be classified as "daddy's little girl" or "mama's boy". To leave the comfort of Mom making our lunches, Dad tying our shoes, and grandma baking cookies for the bake sale, we began to start anew. We drove to Taco Bell, earned money to buy our own clothes and worked concessions to raise money for prom. We struggled to make it through, but in the end, we prevailed. In the process we found that we didn't always need that extra hand to get up or that safety net to break our fall. We learned that to achieve all we must sacrifice everything- even our

Listen to your Spirit

When the women's soccer team became MEL champs (again) they were not just the women's soccer team. They were our team. You probably do not notice when it happens, and it happens all the time, but phrases like "Who are we playing tonight?" simply roll off of the tips of our tongues.

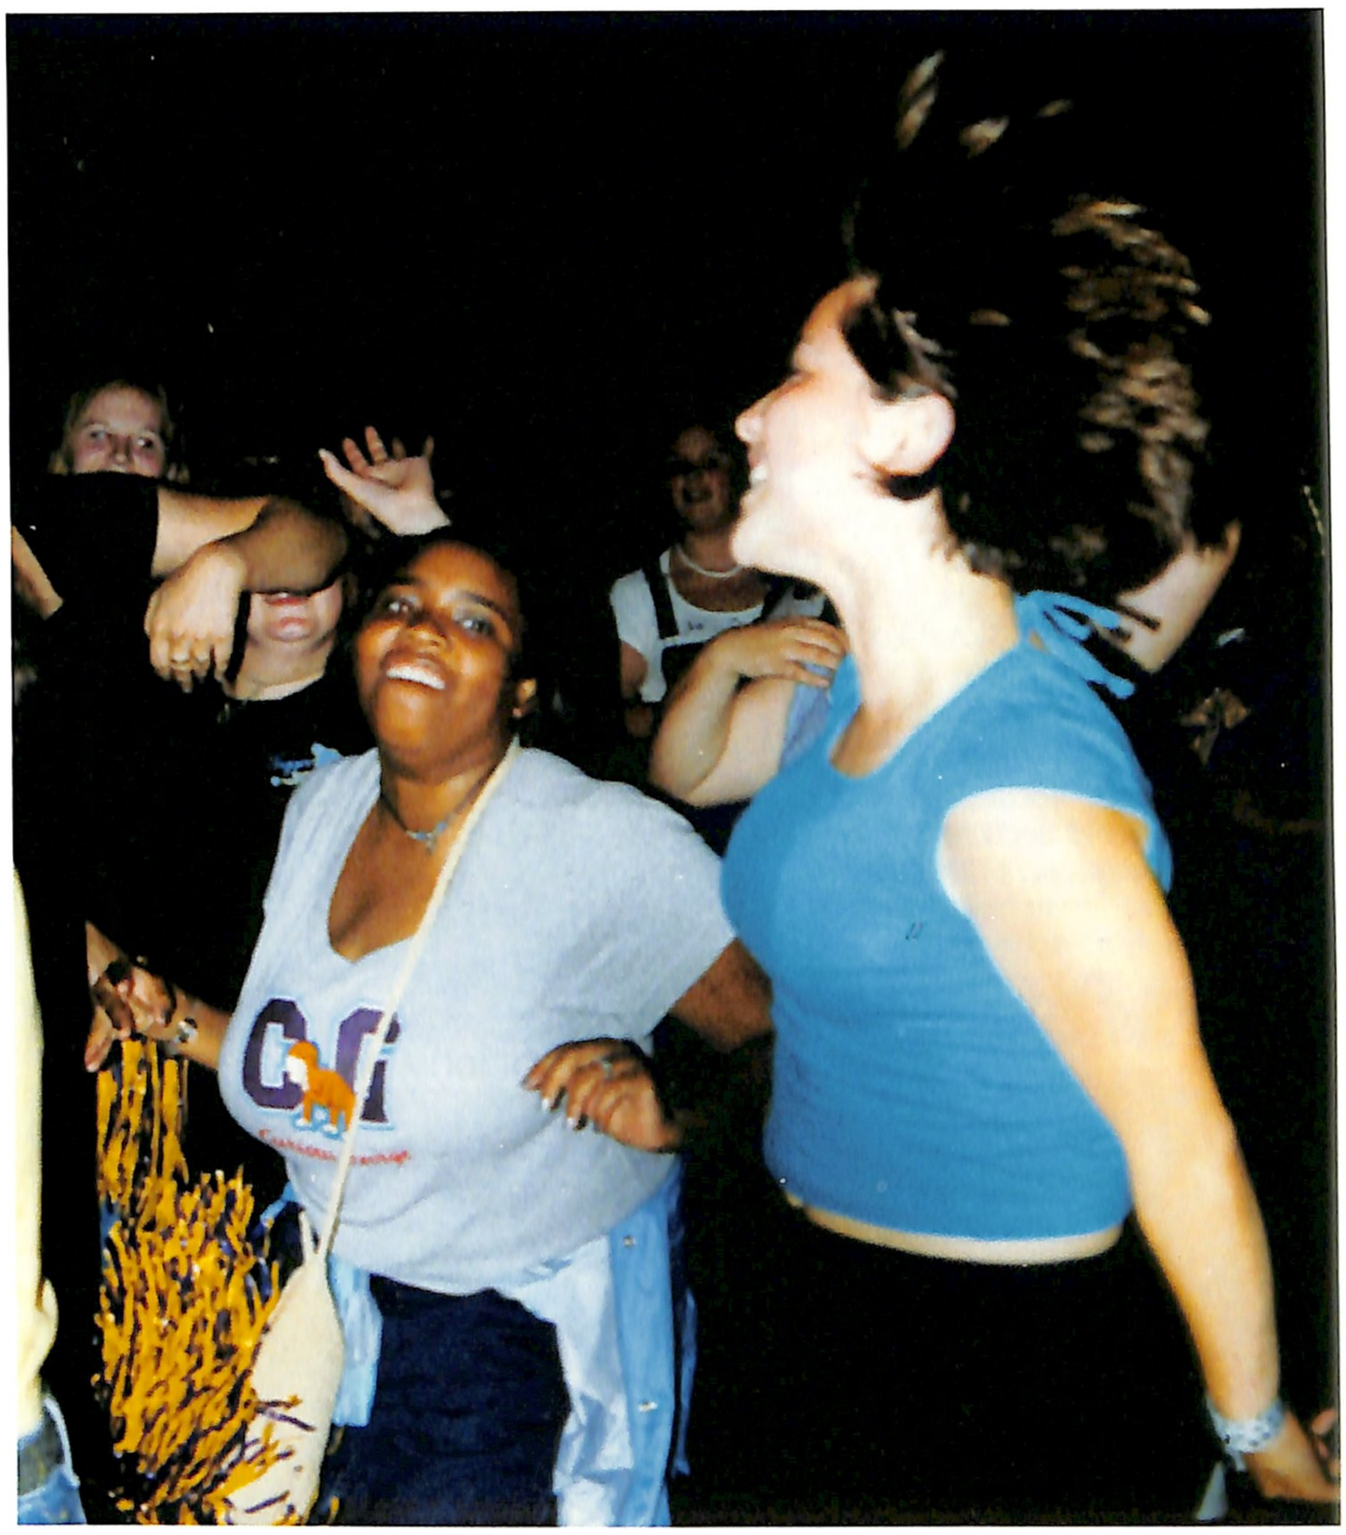

So whether you are an athlete, musician, club secretary or whether you like it or not, you're a part of it. The memories, the success, the spirit of Armijo.

If it is telling you to stay up a little longer so you can finish your reading assignment in Catcher in The Rye. Or if it is saying "All of the 'cool' people probably aren't doing it..." or if it's telling you to push that last mile just a little harder... Listen to it. Listen to your spirit.

It was the most awaited moment of last year.

We all watched the clock as the second hand circled

'round to 11:41. At the ring of the bell, summer

officially began.

Almost everyone's favorite time of the year is summer.

Who wouldn't love a chance to kick back and relax?

But some of us didn't get the opportunity to rest. Many were tied down at summer jobs

and others took classes

over the summer at Solano College.

The thought of long classes haunted us all as we watched the clock turn to

8:05 on the first day of school. While we weren't looking, summer slipped past.

The shaving cream fight, held on the last day of the 2000 school year made it look like it was snowing in the parking lot. "It was really crazy. We had it all in our faces but it was a great way to begin the summer," said Andrew Gemmer '02. The shaving cream fight celebration was a school tradition.

Almaz Ahmed-Falol '01, played a popular camp activity, "the cup game," while attending Girls State Camp. "I met a lot of different girls and we made a mock government," said Almaz. 540 girls from California attended the camp at Pitzer College in Claremont, CA.

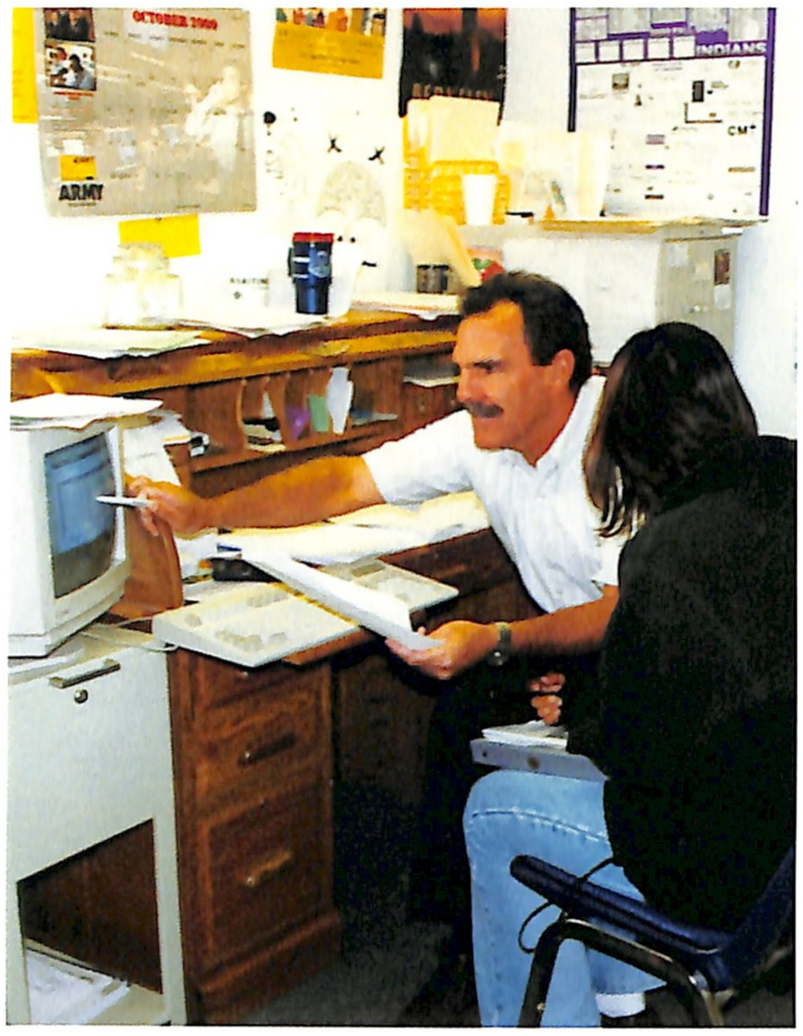

When everybody else tried to beat the summer heat, Austin Jansen '01, jumped into the flames. "It was the first time I had been in a fire. It felt like I was in a movie," he said. Austin participated in a mock fire at the Wooz in Vacaville.

Freddy Blandino '03, got a chance to sneak back stage and chat with Jose Feliciano, a blind musician. "He talked to all of us about being blind and how it shouldn't limit us," Freddy said. Freddy met Feliciano at the "Where is Fairfield" festival.

Concerned about college requirement credits, Mr. Falkenstein explains Oravahn Thammasen's current credit total. "There was no room in the office to move. College apps are very overwhelming. I thought my senior year was going to be easy!" said Oravahn. Because some seniors wanted to graduate early, and some didn't get the right classes to graduate, Mr. Falkenstein was overwhelmed with class change requests.

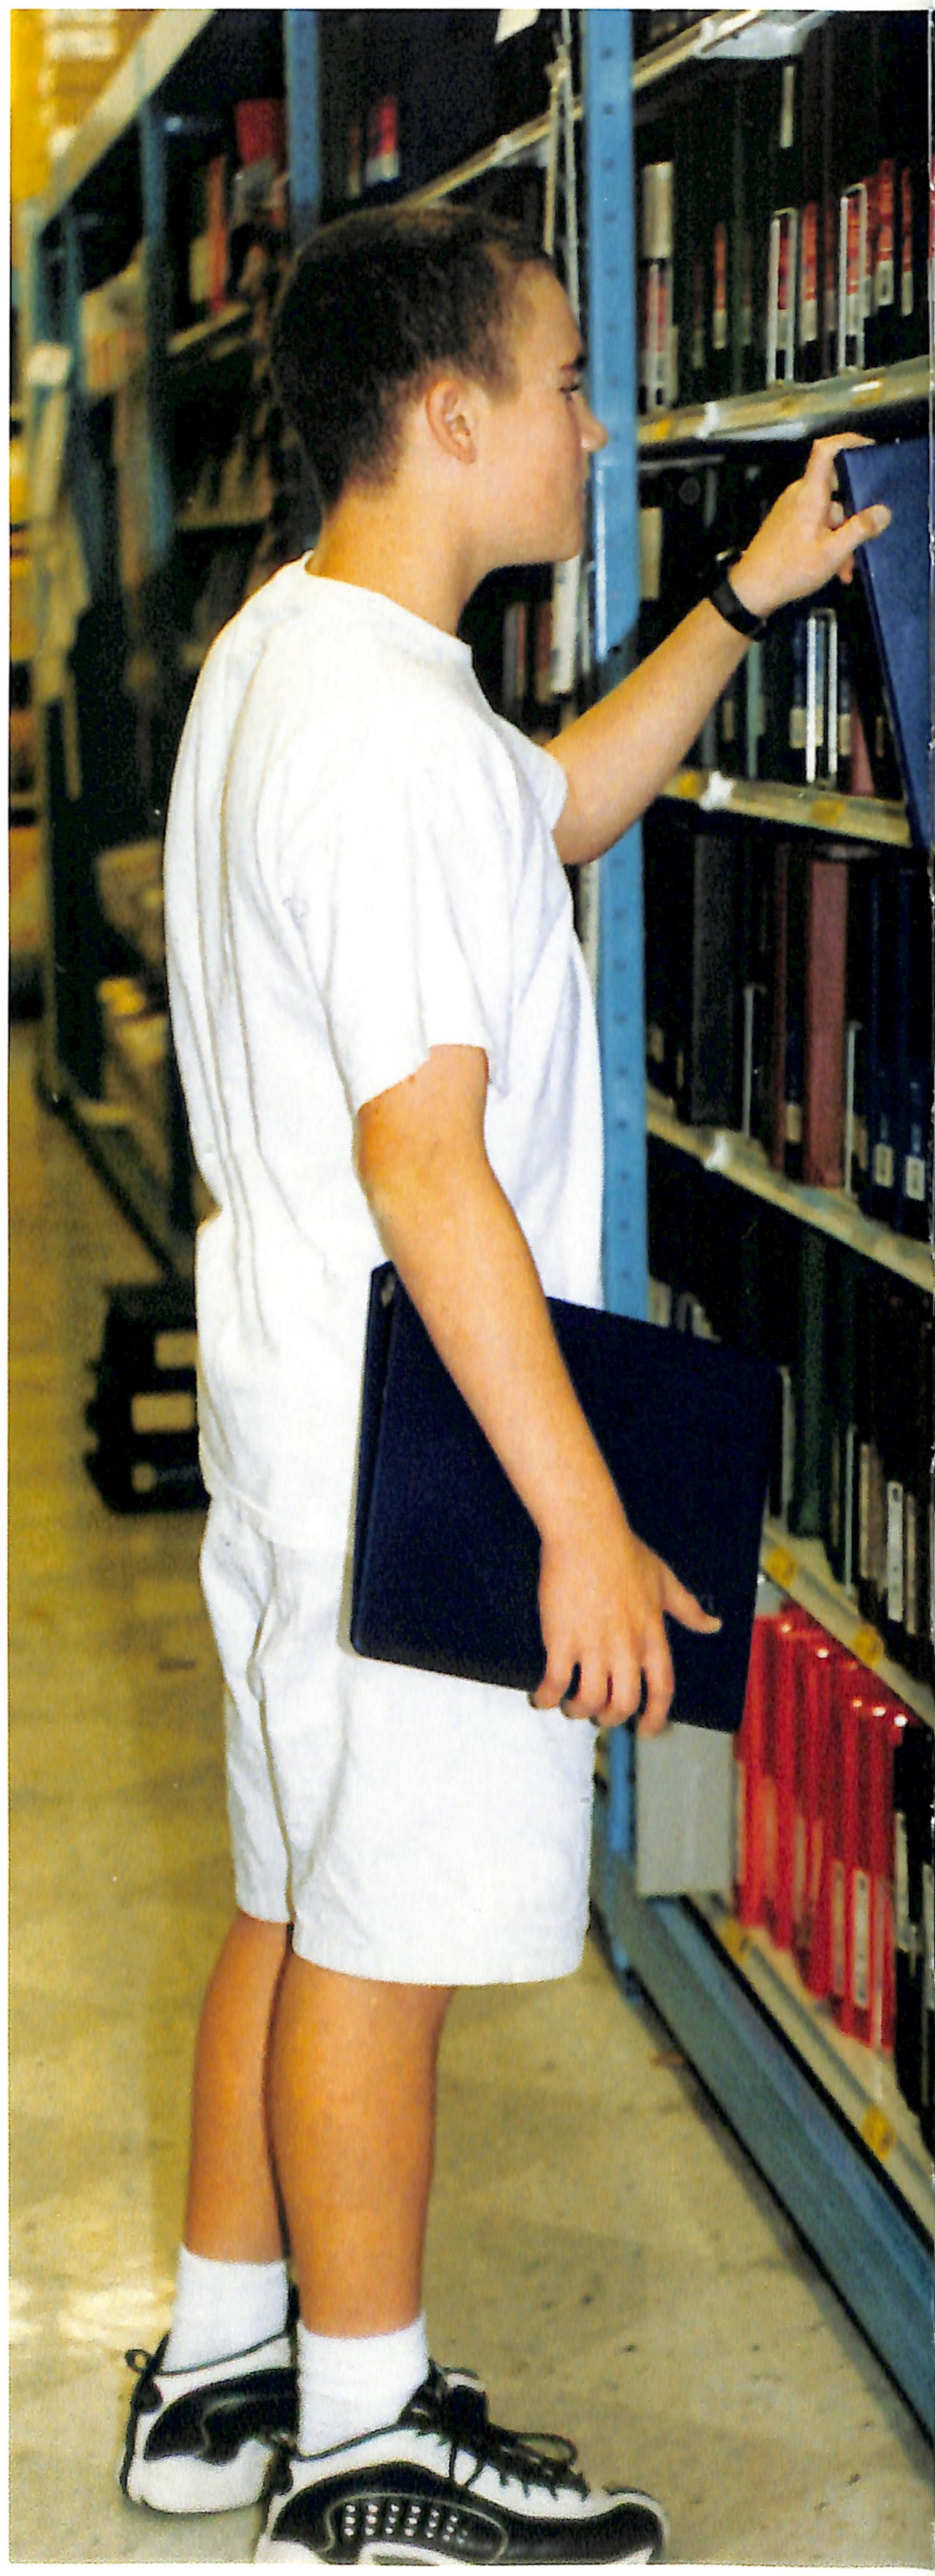

Patrick McGowan '02, Daniel Torres and Micah Smurthwaite '01, conversed at Daniel's car, anxiously awaiting the first bell to ring. "It was really hard for me to get up in the morning, but at least I have the satisfaction of knowing it's my senior year. I was also excited to see my friend Pooshkaff," said Daniel.

Amongst the crowds that crammed into the counseling office, Brenda Allen waited patiently to request a schedual change and to make an appointment with Mr. Falkenstein."It was very frustrating for my schedual to be wrong because I am a mid-year grad."

The day before freshman Ben Davini's first day of high school, he shopped for school supplies. "It is not at all what I thought of it to be," said Ben. To familiarize the freshmen to the campus, the school held orientations and tours weeks before the school year commenced.

rude awakening

You woke up early to get ready and you ate a hearty breakfast. Your skin could not have looked better and your clothes smelled like "new". The whole day went without a hitch. Okay, except you got up 10 minutes before you were supposed to leave, grabbed a stale Poptart and brushed your hair on your way to school. You were glad to see all of your friends who you lost touch with over the summer. But you liked being able to sleep in. As with everything else in life, the first day of school was a paradox. All you knew for sure, was that it had been a very long time since you were up early enough to see morning.

First Day thoughts...

"How I pictured high school to be turned out to be totally different than reality. The whole environment is completely different from middle school."
-Armilizel Gutierrez '04

"Walking around campus on the first day was different because I wasn't a freshman anymore. It was funny to see all of the lost freshmen."
-Joseph Hamilton '03

"I got up at eight a.m. after I had a nightmare about a chicken chasing me and telling me to go to school."

"I went into the wrong class and didn't realize it until the two-minute bell rang. I went to my old Chemistry class instead of my Physics class."
-Carlo Malinao '01

"Driving to school this year was a new experience. A lot of my friends are seniors and it makes me sad that they're going to leave."
-Paula Wilkinson '02

The teen work force worked from sun up to sun down and then some. After an 18 hour day, a few extra hours to relax was a dream almost too sweet.

Such is life for a student who works hard, studies hard and plays hard. When the seven hour day at school was over, their extended day began. Get this: a two hour practice, followed by four more hours at work, until ten at night. And the day is still not over. When the employees got home, they worked for a few more hours on homework. Then, if they were lucky, they got a good nights sleep, woke up the next morning and did it all over again.

Macy's employee Josh Wallace '01, delivered a box to a customer. "I've been working at Macy's for two years. I enjoy it because it's really laid back, except when we have big sales," said Josh. Josh not only worked in the sales department, but also in stock, dock, and pickup.

Joe Salerno '01, stocked the shelves at Spencer's Gifts in the mall. "The best part about working here is that I get a lot of free stuff," he said. Many students also got discounts from their employers.

Lori Bunnel '01, assisted a customer try on a pair of shoes. "I find time to fit school, work and still spend time with my friends after my shifts," she said. Lori balanced two jobs at The Finish Line and Dairy Queen.

Working at Surf City Squeeze was a breeze for Marissa Sponholz '01. "I don't really have to do much and I still get paid so it's cool," said Marissa. Working with her friends, she said, made her job more enjoyable.

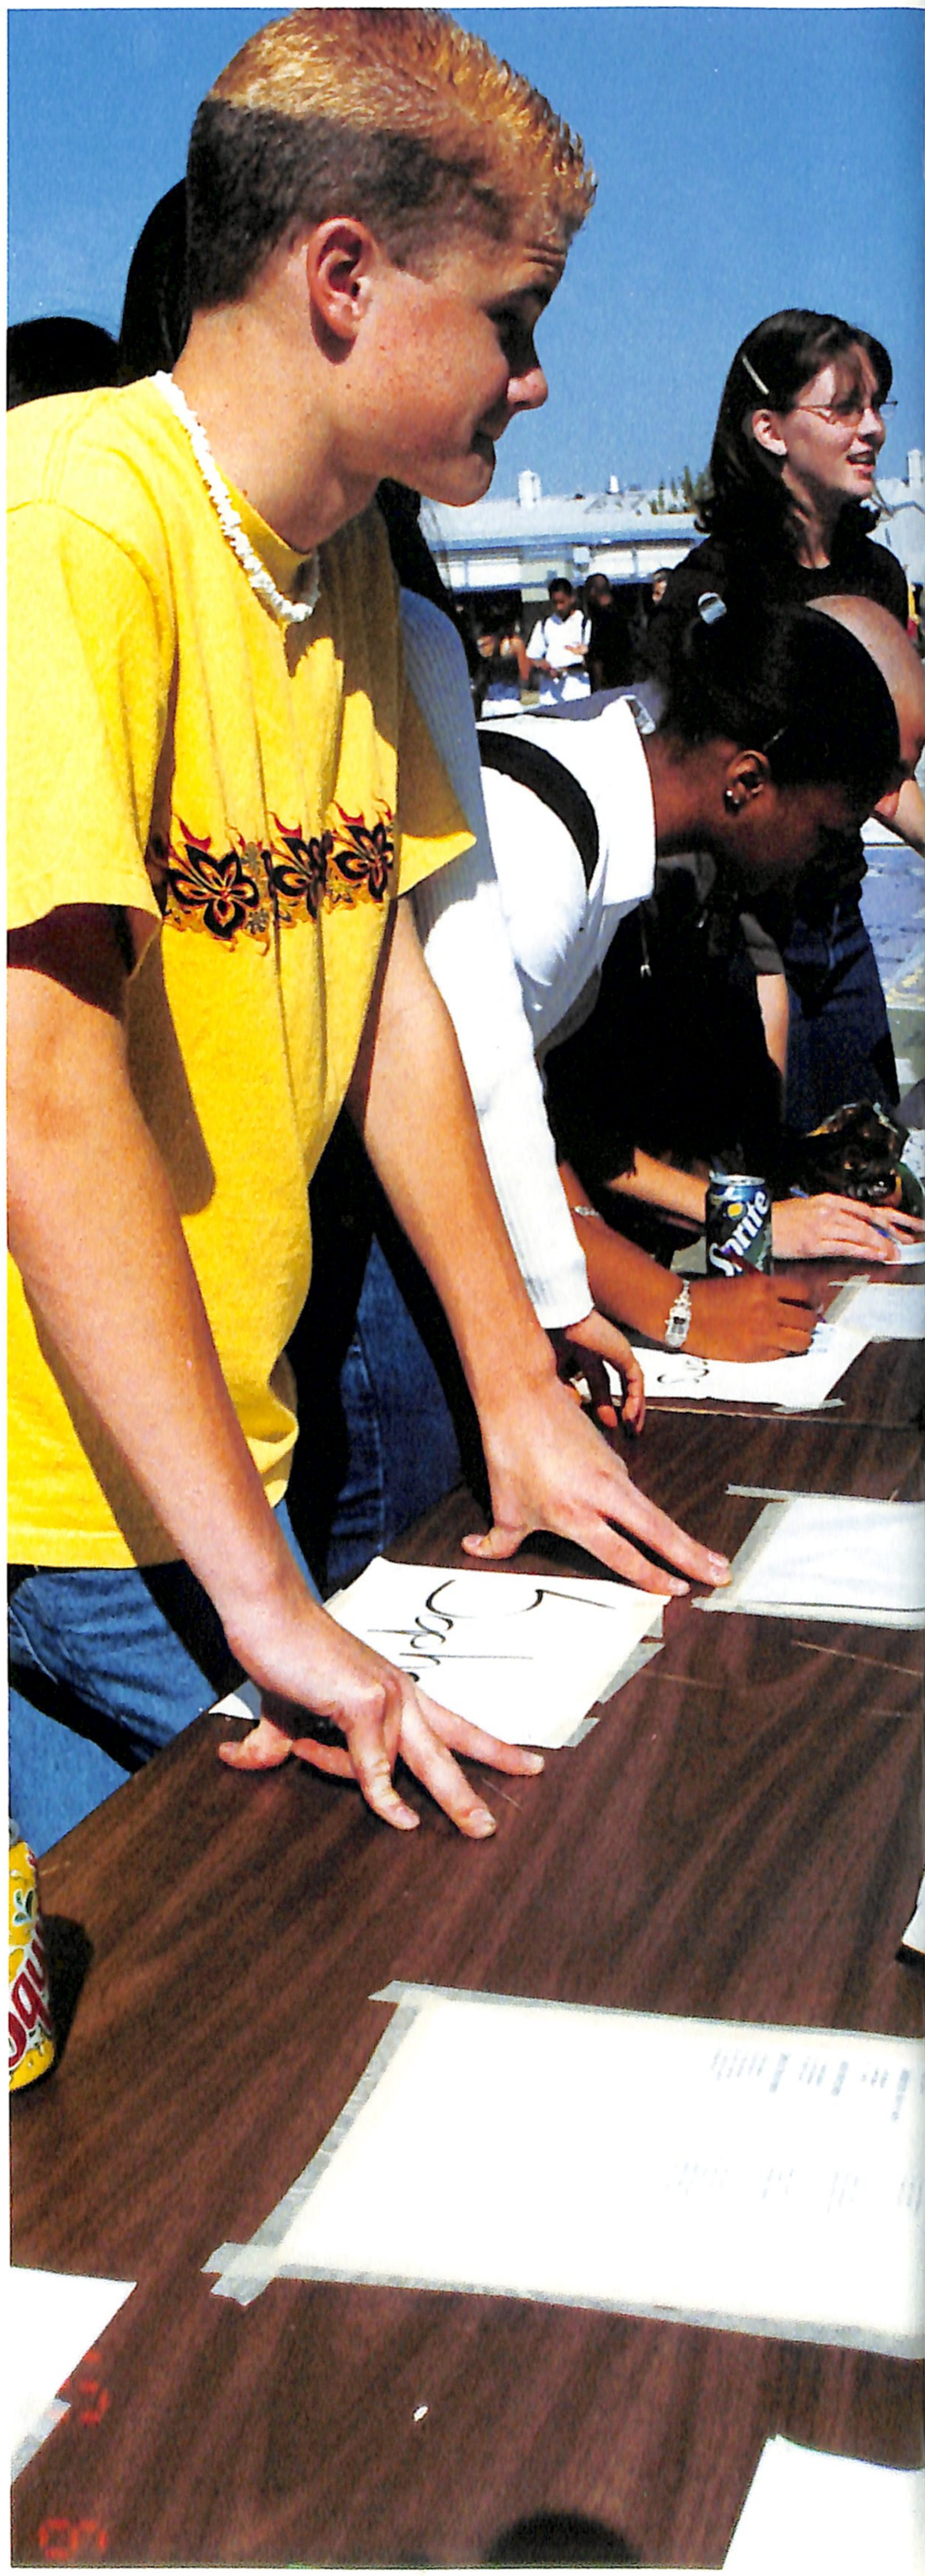

Erwin Biray and Jeremy Rillo. '01. members of the saber team. set themselves into position along the assembly walkway. "It was nice seeing some of my friends walk down the white paper." said Jeremy. The saber team saluted the nominees as the walked down the isle way during the assembly in the morning.

The sophomore class wore matching wigs and overalls to imitate the Oompa Loompas from the movie "Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory." "We worked hard together and our effort and teamwork paid off at the end." said Aimee Major. '03. Each of the classes spent Friday afternoon putting last minute touches on their floats.

The juniors won first place with the float titled "Mary Poppins." "The best part was performing and being in front of the crowd." said Alama Sao. '02. The freshman were the announced as winners. but the juniors were the actual champions.

Andrew Wickham '02. found time during lunch to cast his vote for homecoming. "I voted for who I felt should get it. I think it is a popularity contest." said Andrew. The voting booth was open Thursday and Friday at lunch during spirit week.

movie night

It was just like in the movies. The field lights made the football uniforms look crisp and white. The homecoming nominees looked out of place (and cold) in formal attire and the fans in the stands were part of the exitement just by being there.

What a fitting scene for homecoming night, which had a theme of "Classic Movies." For the float competition, each class recreated a few scenes from their favorite classic movie. The float competition commenced the festivities on Friday night, before the football game began. The homecoming celebration ended on Saturday with the dance in the school gym.

Freshman Boys held their class signs high as they paraded across the track. "Getting involved in the float was fun because I talked to a lot of girls," said Danny Saeturn, '01 The freshmen recreated the movie, "Little Rascals," and they won second place.

Blake Pelts, Barron Cuadro and Steven Sylvester, '01, followed the yellow brick road, in the Seniors recreation of Wizard of Oz. "The best part of being on the float is everyone seeing my sexy, sexy lion costume Rrowwrrr Ffftt Rrowwrr," said Barron. The seniors also had the musicians Limp Bizkit on the float.

During the Mock Funeral held first period on Friday of Homecoming week, Camilla Perota and Kelley McVicar '01, cried for the defeated opposing team. "The Mock Funeral really captures the spirit of homecoming. As the band nears each hallway, students run out of their classroom to watch the festivities." said Camilla. The Super Band provided music for the funeral.

Mobster Marco Berrios '01, played dead on Brown Lee Field's track. "We chose Dick Tracy because of the mobster scene and the big cast so that more people could be in it," he said. The Drama Club put a float together in only three days before the performance.

As the crowd tried to squeeze through the gym doors, Andrew Gemmer '02, waited impatiently. "I hate waiting at the end of the rally. Two hundred people are trying to get out at the same time," he said. Since most of the rallies were on Friday, most were rushing out to enjoy the weekend.

The senior class screamed the loudest during the spirit yell competition. "We made spirit shakers out of cups and tape so that we could make a lot of noise," said Bruce Banouvong. Each time the seniors won the spirit yell, they received class points for the class of the year competition.

The sophomore powder puff cheerleading squad made a kick line during the powder puff rally. "I got to do powder puff last year," said Danny Valles. "It was awesome doing it again with other people that were so in to it." During the rally, a squad of boys from each class performed in cheerleader outfits.

Jenny Privatte and LaQuisha Overton '01, helped prepare for the rally during sixth period. "We made a sign to hang over the senior section," said LaQuisha. During the rallies, each class sat in their respective section of the gym.

As a parent volunteer checked for IDs at the doorway, a crowd of students slowly inched towards the door. "It was like standing in line to get on a amusement park ride," said Katrina Gutierres 02.

For the first time, the rallies attracted enough of us that many times, students were turned away because the gym was full.

The rallies pumped up a packed gym with spirit yells, class competitions and different forms of entertainment.

"My favorite rally was the fall sports rally," said Samara Clark '02 "I liked seeing my friends get a pie in the face."

Some were nervous, some were scared. Some were as happy as could be. Regardless of the emotions we felt, we all were there for the same reason - to give blood.

The annual event happened on October 25 and 26 and was held jointly by The Solano Community Blood Bank and the leadership class.

To give blood, you had to weigh a minimum of 110 pounds and be at least 16 years old. Each minor that donated blood needed a permission slip signed by a parent.

The drive had a few problems like sickness and slow blood flow. However, in the end it was all worth it, if not for the good feeling we enjoyed, then for the cookies given out.

By Patricia Zialcita

Ashley Castillo '02, patiently waited on the stretcher at the blood drive. "It was scary, but it was worth it because I know that it is going to benefit somebody else," said Ashely. The blood that was collected went to the Solano Community Blood Bank to be distributed to those in need.

James Pardi '01, cringed as one of the nurses pricked his finger during an Iodine check. "I was expecting it to hurt but it didn't," said James. James participated in the blood drive each of the three previous years and also gave blood during the summer.

Kenneth Wanlass '01, and Maria Berrios '02 sat back as blood was slowly sucked from their veins. "I'm never doing it again! It took a long time because I had small veins and I got sick afterwards," said Maria. Her appointment was scheduled to be half an hour, but it lasted for more than an hour.

Tiffany Garrett and Sarah Gutierrez '01, filled out the required paper work before giving blood. "I wasn't scared at all because I've done it many times before," said Sarah. Volunteers at the blood drive were busy because of the numerous amount of donors.

As marshmallows filled every space inside his mouth, Shawn Banazadeh struggled to utter the words "Chubby Bunny." He suceeded and won points for his class in the Wednesday Night Jam competition. There is no better night to get spirited than a night of competition. Students from every class came together as teams that were determined to prove that their class was the best. Events like Tug-of-War and Skin-the-Snake required near perfect teamwork. At the end of the night, seniors came in first, sophomores, second, juniors, third, and the freshman took fourth place.

Chelsea Rees '03, chewed a mouthful of red licorice. "I think the sophomore class worked well as a team because we're all good friends and have a lot of trust for each other," said Chelsea. The object of the game was to see which pair could finish eating the licorice piece first without using their hands.

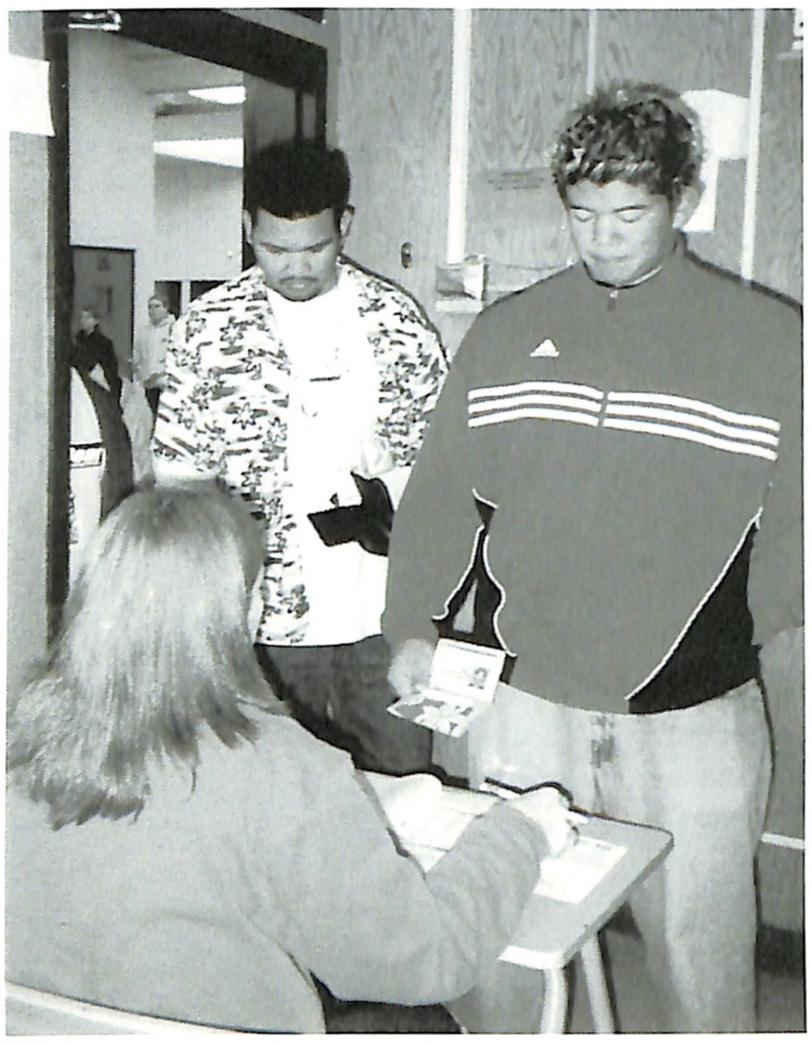

During Tug of War, the senior class participants pulled their end of the rope with combined strength. "It was my first Wednesday Night Jam and I had fun competing," said Vanessa VanSeigman '01. Many people participated in this yearly event.

Lavina Hunt and Debbie Krismen '02, wrapped their teammate in toilet paper as quickly as they could. "It was fun to participate in the Mummy Wrap because I like to compete," said Debbie. To the juniors' disappointment, the seniors won the event.

Rebecca Stewart '04, was a first time competitor in Chubby Bunny. "It was a little weird because I was the only girl up there," Rebecca said. She stuffed nine jumbo marshmallows into her mouth without having to chew.

Barry Cruz and Jason Ennis '01. showed their IDs to an SAT testing instructor. "I think the tests are a good way of making sure that everyone can go to college," said Barry. In order to complete the admission requirements for college. seniors were required to take the SAT I by December.

Scott Lamphiear '01. was crowd surfing at the "Anger Mangement Tour" concert. "I needed some water. so I crowd surfed to get some," said Scott. A crowd of 10.000 people attended the concert to see headliners like Eminem. Limp Bizkit. and Vacaville natives Papa Roach.

While she was working during the holiday season. Dina Lewis '01. rang up a customer's holiday gifts. "I worked mostly on the weekends so I could save up for college." said Dina. Many students were hired for seasonal employment during the holidays.

On a Saturday evening. Diane Valmadrid '01. got ready for a date with her boyfriend. "Me and Jorge always see each other at school. so it's nice to do something different on the weekends," said Diane. For many couples. weekends were when they could spend time together.

two day vacation

It was the 48 hours we could call our own. We found refuge in having the option to sleep in an extra hour or two or three and we forgot about pencils, papers, and books. It was our weekend.

The weekends were like a two day vacation.

During the break, most of us switched into relax mode. We went snowboarding, played a baseball game, caught up on some homework or just stayed home. It was the only time when we could pay attention to ourselves.

But time flies when you're having fun. The weekends went by altogether too quickly, and before we knew it, we were back in the classroom.

Shhh...The phones were quiet and the streets were still. Where was everyone? Dancing the night away on the gym floor!

Usually, a group of people was crowded around the DJ in front, the break dancers were off to the side in a circle and the rest of the dance floor was sprinkled with groups of friends dancing in their own rings. When a slow song came on, things all changed. People came out of the stands in pairs and groups broke of into two-person pieces. Then the night was either ripe for romance or just filled with laid-back fun.

They anxiously scooted to the edge of their seats. They stomped, screamed, clapped, jumped, danced, chanted; anything they could do to show that their school was full of pride. They were the ones who sat in the bleachers on cold nights, wrapped in blankets, and who cheered their favorite team. They were also the ones who packed like sardines into the bleachers of an un-air conditioned gym to root for the school's hoop stars. So, who were they? They were the fans. The real fans, not just those who jump on the band wagon. "I wanted to cheer for my friends at the game," said Sean Ryan '01, who attended water polo games. "I had to!"

Katie Lanflisi '01, and Ashley Scicluna '04, stood in the rain to watch the girls soccer team play. "The rain is not an issue. I love to watch my best friends play," said Katie. The girls soccer season was during the winter, so the fans had to cope with the cold temperature, wind and rain.

Sisters Temina '02, and Nakia McCallun '03, and Carlanda Allen Goree '01, held up a sign that they painted for a basketball game. "I support all my friends because they get me hyped, like Randy's shaker and Jeff's spin," said Carlanda.

Akilah Tutt '02, and Deonna Mitchell '04, celebrated after the team made a basket. "I feel they need all the support they can get and I'm the one to give it," said Deonna. Every time the we scored the crowd stood up and cheered.

Lacy Blanc '04. came to the Armijo-Fairfield basketball game covered in purple and gold. "I'm in leadership and I dress up for all the games, it's more fun that way." said Lacy. Rivarly games brought the Indian spirit out in everyone, even parents.

Male cheerleaders Jason Pontillas '01, and Ricky Gjertsen '02, yelled into the megaphones. "By the end of the game I'm juiced up for some more action," said Ricky. This year the squad had three male cheerleaders.

Brad Handel and Eric Hanley '02, carried their summer gear on Beach Day during homecoming week. "Beach day was my favorite day because I got to be a life guard," said Brad. While few were brave enough to dress in beach attire, many dressed up for Pajama Day.

Johnathan Berry '03, balanced his tuba as he lead the crowd in the "Indian Cheer." "It's exciting to play at games," said Johnathan. The pep band sat within the bleachers to get the crowd up beat during the entire game, not just half time.

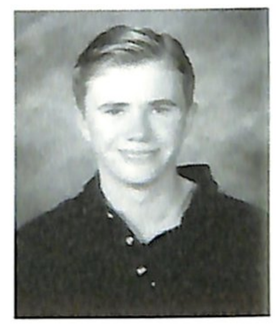

we've got spirit

"...Boom, let's fire it up; Boom, boom let's fire it up," chanted the Cheerleaders. "Go Armijo!!!" screamed the fans as a sea of purple and gold roared in the stands. Do we have spirit? Yah, we've got it, and more than we could show. The primetime of our spirit is during class competitions, like rallies and homecoming. There's no denying it, it's just a natural rush show pride and spirit for your school, like when you cheer at games, dress up in silly 'fits for spirits days, and just yell your ears off at rallies.

Just two more pages.

Don't fall asleep, don't fall asleep. When the words start to swim around the page and your eyelids get heavy, you know you've lost the battle with the Sandman. Who could blame you? It's 12:00 PM. and your still not done with your English. Why? For some of us, it's because we're studying hard, really trying to understand. For others, it's because we played sports, had a job or engaged in other after school activities. But for most of us, it's because we were just plain lazy. Study habits don't matter as long as it get's done, right? Well, our grades will answer that question.

By Susana Zialcita

Bridget Beaudry '03, finished a worksheet on her bed in her room. "When it's sunny in the summer I study outside, when it's rainy I go by the fireplace," said Bridget. Popular study holes were bedrooms, living rooms, and computer rooms.

Crystal Amos '01, studied hard for her Anatomy final. "Mr. Erwin give us three part final. So I have a final one week before everyone else," said Crystal. While it's probably best to study ahead of time, many waited until the last minute.

Nicole Villenueva '01, read the summaries in her Cliff's Notes. "Sometimes if I get behind, I use them to keep up with class," said Nicole. Other study guides like Barron's.comsaved procrastinating students.

Jessica Peterson '03, studied in the gym while she waited for the game. "Since I play a sport, it gives me less time to study, so I do it whenever I can," said Jessica. Athletes tried to squeeze in homework between games.

Bernard Thompson '03, shows his new clothes to LaQuisha Overton '01. "Gotta get my gloves, and my jacket, it's sauce," said Bernard. Styles that students wore classified them into different groups and cliques.

Melissa Toolson checked her pager while working at Express in Solano Mall. "I liked having a pager to keep in touch with my friends. I just wish it was only my friends paging me," said Melissa. Pager-owners learned to use pager code, which was an alphabet created from the numbers on a touch tone telephone.

Evan Massey '04, laced up his skates at a friends house. "It's a lot of fun but I almost got arrestedthe last time I went skating," said Evan. Skating and other more obscure sports were popularized by ESPN's "X Games."

Immediately after getting home, Darren Goring '04, logged onto Napster. "I think Napster shouldn't be legalized because it's a great way to get free music," said Darren. Napster was a program that allowed Internet users to share music files for no cost.

We were the generation of technology, connected to the world through wireless phones and byte-sized pagers and jamming to tunes that pushed for the rights of free speech and expression. "I think Eminem can rap good, but he talks too much mess and I don't like Britney Spears because her boobs are fake," said Britney Armstrong '02.

As for entertainment, we almost tuned in to watch Reality TV shows more than we tuned into the radio. "My goal is to be on Real World; they get to live in a cool house with no rent," said Nikki Anderson, '01. Who wouldn't want instant celebrity status, just for having drama on television?

What lets out the primordial beast in any Indian? The sight of a red and black Falcon. The feeling of intense rivalry loomed in the air every time we met with the other high school in town.

The close competition between the water polo, basketball, and football teams are just a few examples of the rivalry between our schools.

Other groups like DECA, Key Club and the Academic Decathalon tested themselves against those of Fairfield High.

"This town ain't big enough for the two of us!... So just bring it!" said Phil Patel, a football player.

Vice principal Vacaro talked to Mr. French from Fairfield High. "I know he is my best friend but their his team took the beating at the game." Mr. Vacaro said. Mr. Vacaro was previously a vice principle at Fairfield High School.

Water polo player Jacob Glasshoff '01. set up to shoot a goal against the Fairfield goal keeper. "I've lost to that team for three years in a row." said Jacob. "it feels good to beat them my senior year." The boys team beat the Fairfield team for the first time in 12 years.

Fans at the game read their newspapers when the opposition came out. "The guys are so loud when they cheer." said Deana Chiodo 03. The Armijo Boys team won this game with a 69-59 victory.

Amber Armstrong '01. stood amoung a group of Fairfield cheerleaders. "Wee cheer against each other." said Amber. At halftime, the sqauds check out each other's dance routines.

The gym was dark, the lights were rolled out to mark the path, the sabre team was in place and the music was playing. One by one the nominees crossed the threshold and stepped out into the spotlight. "I was nervous because the lights were on me," said Nicole Wiegand '02.

When homecoming evening arrived, moods had changed. Classes battled for the spotlight and each wanted it's float to be the crowd's favorite. This time the freshmen shined the brightest and they won first place in the competition.

Story by: Patricia Zialcita

John Zopfi '03, acted sassy as the famous "Mango" of SNL. "I did it for the school. I was just showing school spirit," said John. The sophomores did not exhibit their entire float because their music would not play.

The seniors showcased their enactment of a "A Night on the Roxbury." "Watching Felix and Paris dance was interesting. It showed their personalities," said Callie Clagg '01. The class won third place in the competition.

Nominee Javier Garcia Jr. '03, was escorted by his mother at the assembly. "Even though I didn't win it was a great experience," said Javier. He also felt that it was an honor just to be part of the festivities.

Orin Wakefield '02, broke it down at the junior's "Wayne's World Prom." Orin said, "We didn't have much time to prepare, so we put it together in the last hour."

The senior nominees applauded as the winners were announced. "I felt honored to be nominated by my class, and it was a lot of fun to dress up," said Andrea Calvert '01. All the nominees agreed that the entire day of homecoming was fun.

Kristen Young '04, danced in the "Superstar" part of the freshman float. "I'm really not a dancer. It was my first time actually performing on the float," said Kristen. The second half of their skit included the Spartan Cheerleaders.

Fairfield and Suisun were not the most poppin' places to be, but we found places to hang out and things to do. Whether it was at your best friends house, the mall or The Grad in Davis, there was one spot that you called your own.

Friday movie releases were awaited events. Edwards Theatres in the mall was packed every Friday night. Some of us found our hot spots outside of the Solano scenery. "The flatlands are hekka boring, so me and my patnas' usually parlay in the city (San Francisco)," commented Chris Vallejos, '03.

Ann Henrich and Nick Smith '02, played pool at a church youth group meeting. "I don't care what I do on the weekends as long as it's with Ann," said Nick. Youth group's like High Life at Parkway church in Fairfield and MCA at the Muslim mosque in Santa Clara provided social activities for teens.

Couple Jeff McCall and Temina McCloud '02, discussed what they were going to eat at Hot-Dog on a Stick in the mall. "She takes hecka long. First she'll say she wants one thing then she changes her mind and ends up eating my food," said Jeff. With so many food joints to choose from it was difficult pick just one meal to eat.

Leah Corpuz '02, and a friend shopped at the Wherehouse in the mall. "I wanted to hear the new Britney Spears CD before I bought it," said Leah. The mall was a popular hang out on the weekends.

Melissa Revilla and Desiree Nagal '01, withdrew money from the ATM machine by Edwards Theater. "I don't know what I would do without an ATM card," said Desiree. Going to the movie theater was a favorite activity for many students.

The sound of the bat colliding with the ball echoed in the stands, silencing the crowd and players alike. All watched to see whether it would be a winning home run game, or an out. The feelings of the players intensified with each second wondering what uncertainty lay ahead of them. "Hitting a home run is the greatest feeling," said Chad Donnelly, '01. "It just feels great!" Winning the game doesn't just depend on a great offense, it depends on the defense as well. Perhaps the most important player of all is the pitcher, who can make or break the game. "I love it when I strike somebody out, it feels great!" exclaimed Dustin Maul, '01. The Armijo baseball team strove to win, but it accepted defeat with grace and humility. No matter what the outcome was, they took great pride in their accomplishments and played with great sportsmanship.

Mike Rider, '01, pitched hard during a game against a rival. "I've been pitching since I was little and it comes natural to me so I'm pretty good at it," said Mike. The pitcher was one of the team's most valuable players.

Batter's Up

The catcher tagged out a player, just as they slid onto the home plate. With the roar of the crowd and the scream of the word "SAFE!" from the referee, the Armijo girls' softball team cheered. "I love to pick people off bases!" exclaimed Cass Mabary, '01, a member a the varsity team as she returned to the dugout with her teammates. "Plus the collisions are pretty tight when you knock the people down!" Yet with all the joys of the game, underneath the simple pleasures, there was always an added tension while playing. "There is so much direct and indirect pressure to play with zero percent error," commented Iris Cook, '02. "Everyone wants the chance at making it to sections. As with any year, the practiced plays seemed old and dull, but with the comforts of an experienced team, the girls' revived their spirit. Any spectator could tell the girls wouldn't want to be anywhere else.

Joey Williams, '01, fed Cass Mabary, '01, at the tee hitting station. "It was great to have such a team," said Joey. Seven seniors returned to play.

On The Green

With five solid returning players, Armijo's golf team hoped to contend for the year's M.E.L. title against their biggest competition, Vintage. "I am looking forward to NorCal," said Danny Valles, '03. "I think we can go all the way."

Returning seniors Adam Deadrich, Jason Covey, Eric Silva, Ian Reid and sophomores Danny Valles and Mike Spiller made the Indians one of the top teams in the area. The consistent low scores brought in by varsity brought an additional dynamic to the team. As Adam Deadrich, '01 put it, "Unlike the football team, golf actually wins." Midway through the season, they were 4-0. The team's combination of experience, new talent and dedication added them to the list of Armijo's many outstanding teams.

Adam Deadrich, '01, looked on as Jason Covey attempted a 12 foot putt. "If you're hitting the ball straight and your back hurts you're doing something right," said Jason. "Golf is played on a course 5.5 inches wide: between your ears," said Adam.

On your Mark

Track went off with a bang this year. Turnout of members increased from past years and enthusiasm was at a peak from the first day of practice to the completion of the season. "I made it to state last year, and I am ready to do it again. I am so pumped!" Aspen Marshall, '01, exclaimed the first day. The practices began in February and only gained intensity. The participants were forced to push themselves in order to compete better in the meets held every Wednesday. The hard work and dedication paid off. Armijo competed beautifully throughout the whole season and the teamwork and comradeship was evident throughout the whole season.

Chris Baran, '03, jogged around the track for his warm-up. "I like to see myself improve each season," said Chris. Each lap is 400 meters long.

Coach Covington gave advice to a track member while in the block. "The kids are very competitive," he said. This was Covington's second year of coaching at Armijo.

Kim Daum, '04, stretched out before practice. "The meets are fun. You get to meet new people," said Kim. Members of track went to two meets a week.

Diving In

As the frigidness of winter wore away things began to warm up in the pool. The heat of competition was intense among the swimmers and divers of the Armijo swim team.

The team started training in February. They worked hard, practicing everyday after school. Although they allowed themselves to have fun at practice, the swimmers and divers were serious at the meets. They competed against other schools as a team and many also competed against themselves as individuals. Self improvement was a focus in swimming and diving.

Junior Matt Echevarria commented, "Swimming and diving are sports that test your own abilities because when you're up on the board or the block, it's all on you. No one else."

Eric Hanley,'02, leapt off the starting block during a meet. "Strength and precision are necessary in achieving perfecion off the blocks," Eric said. Eric has broken the Armijo record for the 500 freestyle and 100 backstroke.

Stephanie Boehne, '04, practiced her butterfly stroke at practice. "The butterfly is really tiring," she said. Swim practice began right after school.

Brook Hazen, '03, concentrated on the wall as he swam. "It is great to finish, and even better if you win," said Brook. Brook has been swimming since he was six years old.

Birdies

Badminton, a game not only full of strategy, but with determination and technique. These players earned their spot on the limited spaced team through their competitive energy and skills.

"Most of the players from last year are on the team because they've continued to prove to me that they are stronger than ever before," said Coach Linville.

The after school practices allowed the team to perfect any of their weakest moves or to perfect and master their already powerful assets.

"The hardest skill for me to learn was smashes and drops," commented Sheilamae Labrador, '03.

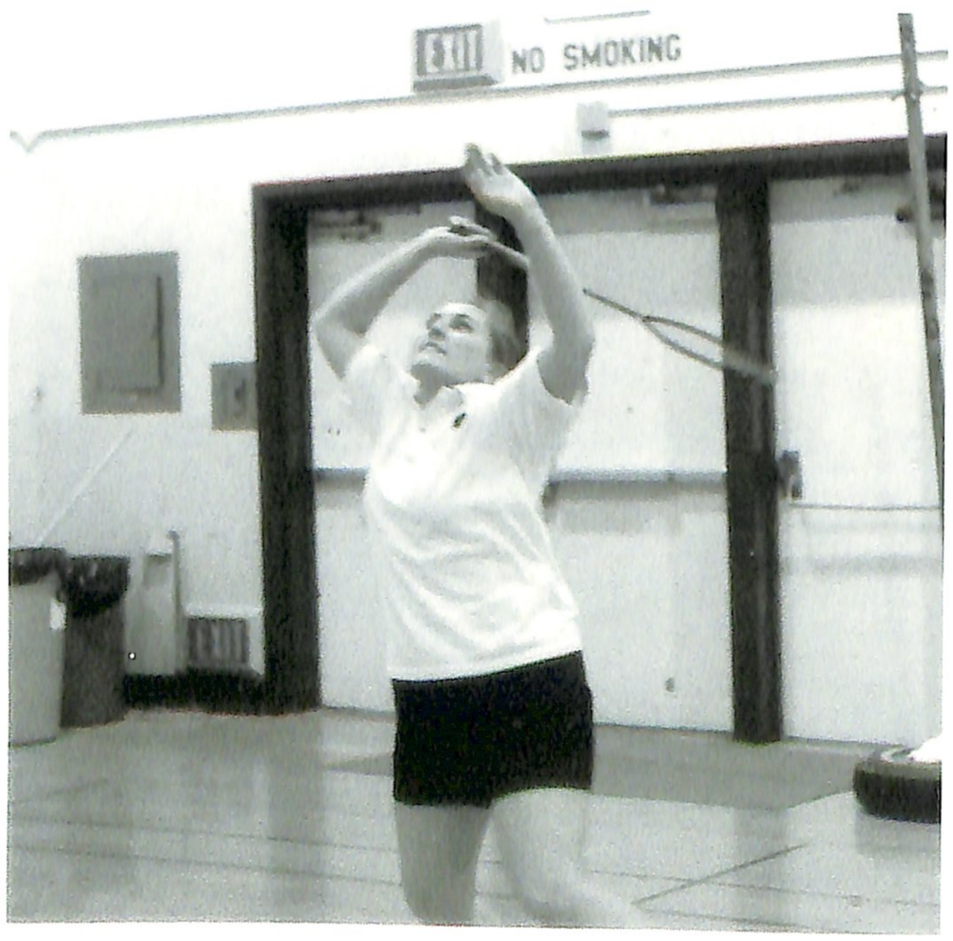

These dedicated players had the potential to surpass any obstacle that preceded before them and they proved it in their success and victory.

Amy Donnoe, '01, practiced her served before a meet against a rival. "I had little skills before I began, but I started picking up the finer skills after a while," said Amy. Practices were held daily for two hours after school for the badminton players.

One on One

"Boom!" That was the sound which radiated through the gym floor and filled the air for a sudden heart-stopping moment. It could either mean the sound of victory or the sound of defeat in the sport of wrestling.

The team began the year with hopes of many victories in the season ahead. Intense training from Coach Williams and Assistant Coaches strengthened each wrestler with individual suggestions.

Though there were times of victories as well as defeats, each player grew beyond what they were. Through time together, they learned the strength of family. From their Coaches, the players learned strategy. The wrestlers took their experience and molded it into their own character.

Senior Justin Banfield,'01, controls his opponent by a frustrating front head lock. "Wrestling is a hard sport, but working hard will absolutely pay off in your matches... mentally and physically," he comments. Justin has been involved in wrestling since his Freshman year.

Behind the Headlines

Many players have played since they were young. Varsity player, Jeff McCall, '02, said, "I've played since elementary school." Experience is a key factor to basketball.

Jason McCall.'03. took a shot in the lane. "I think it is important to get the team motivated before every game," said Jason. Jason is looking forward to playing varsity with his older brother Jeff next year.

Bernard Thompson.'03. looked to pass a ball to an open man. "I want to keep the crowd juiced, but still be unselfish," said Bernard. Teamwork was emphasized and valued more than the individual effort.

The varsity team slapped the sign that read "We Play Hard!" "It is good luck, and it makes us think about playing hard," said Julius Leaks.'01. "We Play Hard" is the motto of the varsity team.

Akeem Holland.'02. looked to pass the ball down low to a teammate. "I learned a lot from playing on the varsity team last year," said Akeem. He was one of two juniors that had varsity experience.

Charles Madden.'02. waited for the lane to open up so he could go to the basket. "Varsity is a lot more physical than J.V. and it moves twice as fast," said Charles. At the varsity level, opponents were also taller and more competitive.

Coach Dahl gave his players a talk during halftime. "I tell them what they did well," said Coach Dahl. The coach is one of the most important players on the team.

Craig Giovannetti.'01. made a lay up. "Our fans give us energy by cheering loud at the games," said Craig. The loudest section in the stands wore yellow shirts that had a purple "A" on them.

Girl's Soccer

To kick off the season, the girls soccer team not only set goals, but scored them too. At the beginning of the season the girls played two games a week and practiced everyday between. Their mission was to work as a team to set up strategic plays. During practice the Lady Indians ran vigorous laps, completed endless drills, and dribbled up and down the field.

The team went a big 5-0 this year. A truly great performance from great players.

Alma Pelayo,'02, commented, "Our team has been awesome this year. I am so proud to be on it."

The girls soccer team passed their goals: they proved to be a tough team, filled with spirit and a desire to win.

Sweeper Jennifer Zopfi,'01, cleared the ball down field for a free kick. Jen said, "This was a pretty good year for us. I like playing soccer because it is very intense and competitive. This year was a big transition for many members on the team.

Brianna Russell faked out an opponent and advanced down the field. "If I can't carry the ball then I pass it," said Brianna. Brianna was one of the fastest players on the team.

Stephanie Munson '03 guarded an attacker close to the sideline. "If I can't get it from them, I try to force them to kick it out so we can throw it in," said Stephanie. A throw in was regarded as dispossesion.

Kelly Carrier '01 pressued an attacker. "I switched to midfield this year so I do a lot more running. I'm now in better shape," said Kelly. A midfielder runs an average of 7 miles a game.

Beth Bosch attacked an opponent from behind. "I have played soccer since I was three years old," said Beth. She was one of the two freshmen on the Varsity team.

Jackie Hopkins challenged the ball in the penalty box. "Who ever wants the ball the most will get it," said Jackie. Jackie was recognized by the referees for her aggresive play.

Amy Eckman followed close behind the opponent. "You can't give your man any room to breathe on defense," said Amy. Amy was a starting defender.

Jennifer Zophi '01, cleared a ball from the defensive zone. "After the ball gets in the defensive third, the first thing you want to do is get it out," said Jennifer. She has played defense for varsity for 3 years.

Cheerleading

What is a rally or sporting event without the cheerleaders' loud voices and well rehearsed dance routines? The spirit that em-erged from the cheerleaders brought excitement to the school over the course of the year. By wearing their uniforms proudly and smiling in purple and gold, the squads lifted up the spirit. "I like to dance and perform in front of people," said Adrienne Snow, '04. We saw the Pom squad perform dances at halftime and heard the Cheer squad belt out cheers from the sidelines. "I've been a cheerleader for all four years, and I love it. Cheering for my twin brother and my dad gives me a special connection to the game," said Katie Giovannetti, '01.

Fallon Charmichael, '02, stomped along with her fellow cheerleaders. "I love cheerleading, it's the best!" she said. Tryouts for the squad were in May and the team practiced during the summer.

Desi Valadez was spirited at the football games. "Being a cheerleader is great," she said. Cheerleaders braved the freezing weather of football games.

Heather Jacobsen, '04, got the crowd pumped up during a football game. "I really like cheerleading because being in a squad is like being with twelve other sisters," she said. The crowd seemed to become more spirited when the cheerleaders came out to cheer.

The varsity squad posed for a team picture at a football game. "I enjoy cheering all the way until my voice gives out," says Jason Pontillas, '01. Jason was one of three male cheerleaders on squad.

Kathleen Pena, '02, had fun while at a football game. "I really liked getting to know the people on the squad," she said. Cheerleaders went to camp to learn dances and cheers.

Sarah Chikowski, '03, performed at halftime with the J.V. squad. "I love the thrill of showing off everything that I have learned in front of an audience," she said. Sarah also participated in cheering last year.

Teresa Urbano, '01, practiced before a game. "The thing that I will miss most is performing for my friends and family at halftime," she said. Teresa has been a cheerleader since her freshman year.

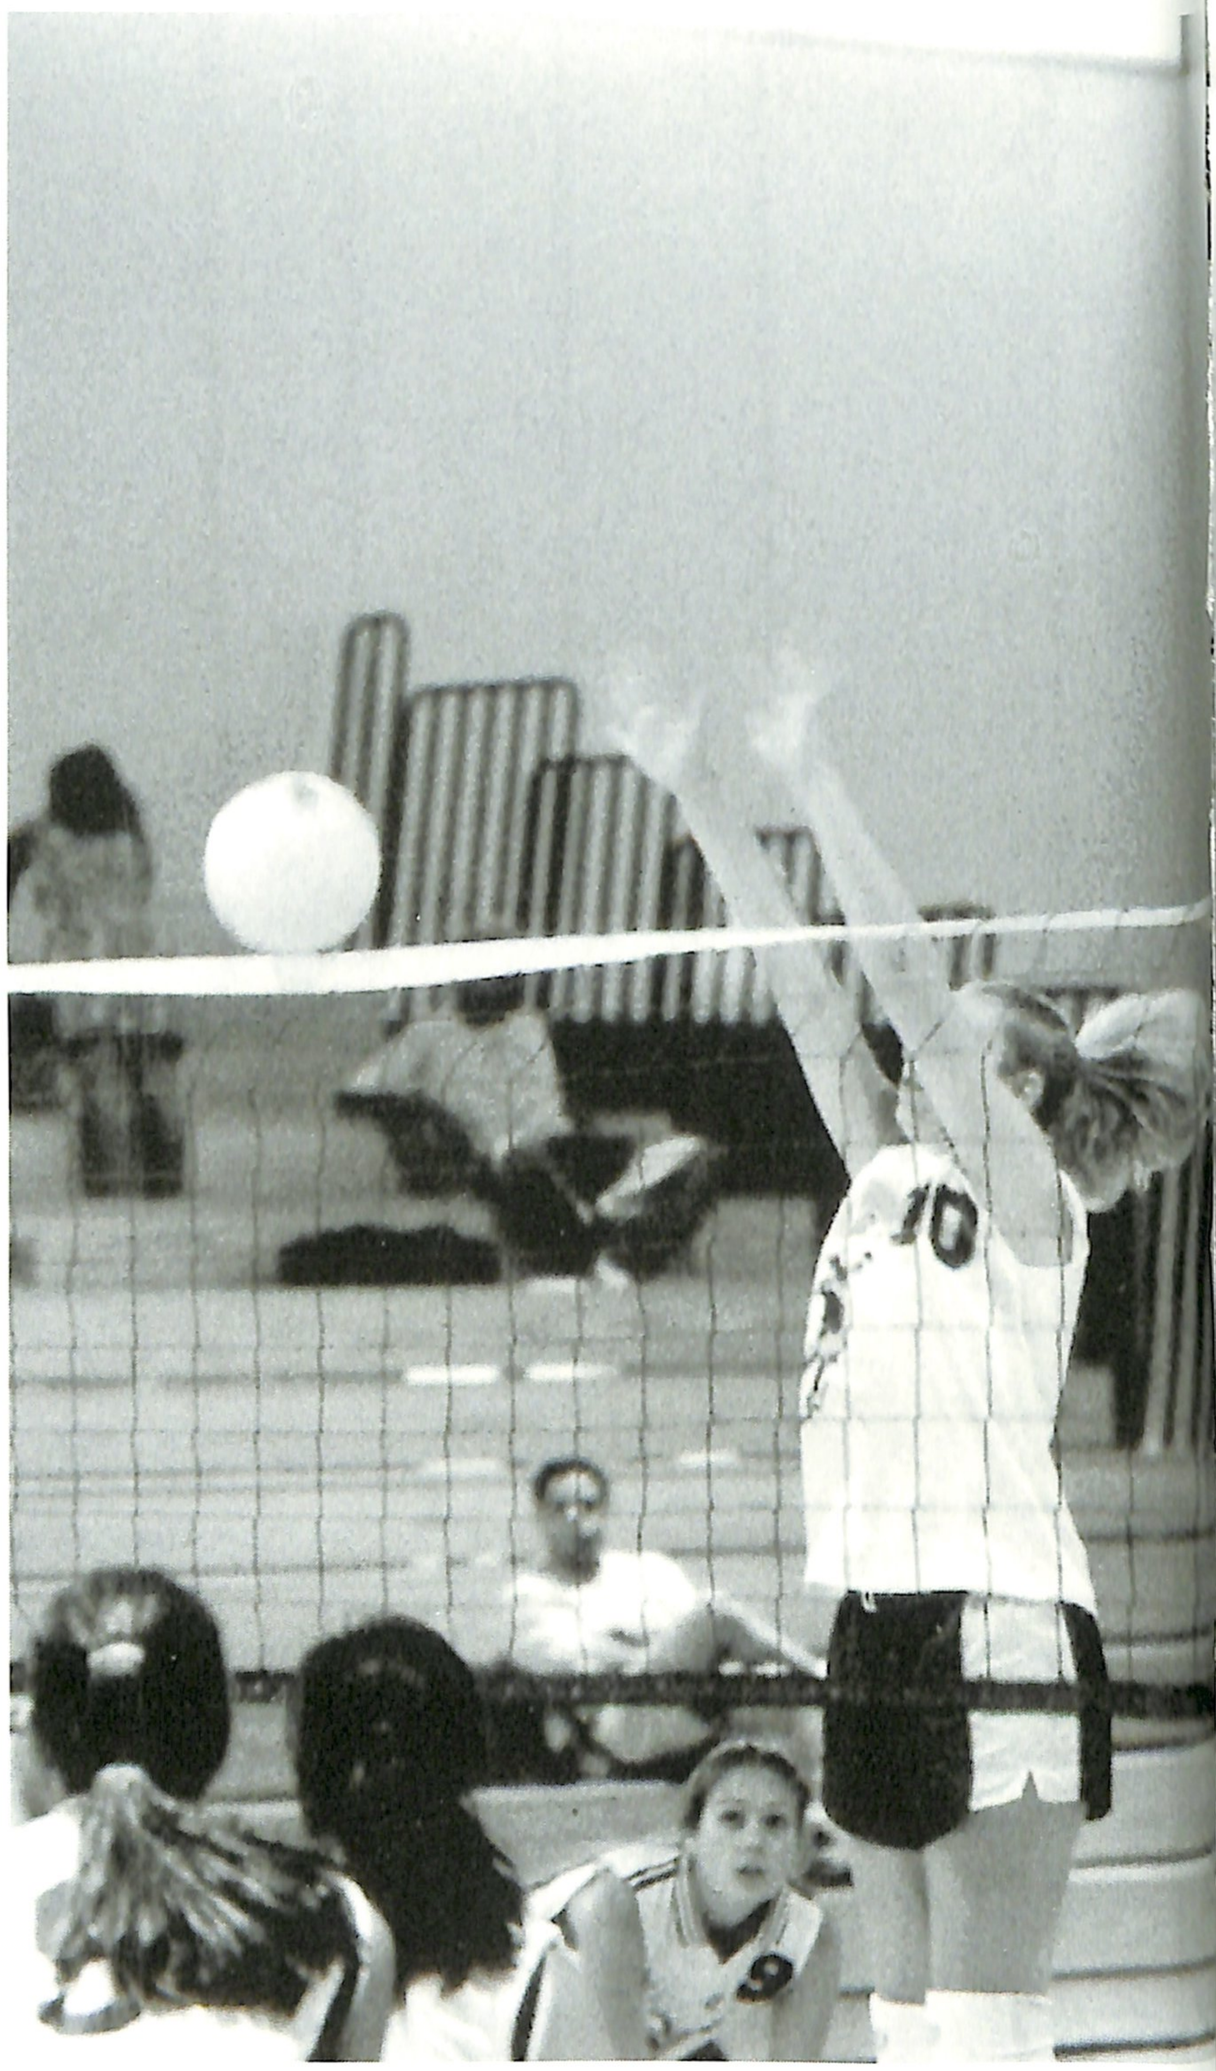

Lacy Towner, '04, performed a cheer with the squad. "I wanted to cheer because you get to perform," she said. The cheerleading squad worked hard to perfect the cheers.

Holly Phillips, '02, was one of Armijo's mascots this year. "It is an interesting experience and I got to ring the bell," she said. Armijo's other mascot was Kristina Price.

Bumpin' it

A challenge, a strain, an undertaking; one could call it whatever they wanted, but the end result was always worth while. The volleyball team wasn't just a bunch of girls playing a game, it was a group of friends helping each other. "I hate sitting on the bench," said Vanessa Pontillas, '03. "I always want to help my teammates out." Their remarkable enthusiasm for the game was unrivaled. Brittany Watson, '01 said, "We always come together during the games. We are all going for the same goal: to win."

Jumping to hit the ball, Lindsey Nichols helps to defend for her team. "Friendships are so important during a game," she commented, "becaue even if you do bad there is always someone there for you." Team members used communication and support to turn out strong games.

Varsity Women

Nick Burton held opponents at bay while searching for teammates. "The key strategy is keeping your lead," he said. Burton was one of the top scorers on the varsity team.

Megan LaPlante '02, blocked a goal shot. "Being goalie is important, but it's all a team effort," she said. Through the season varsity girls averaged eight goals a game.

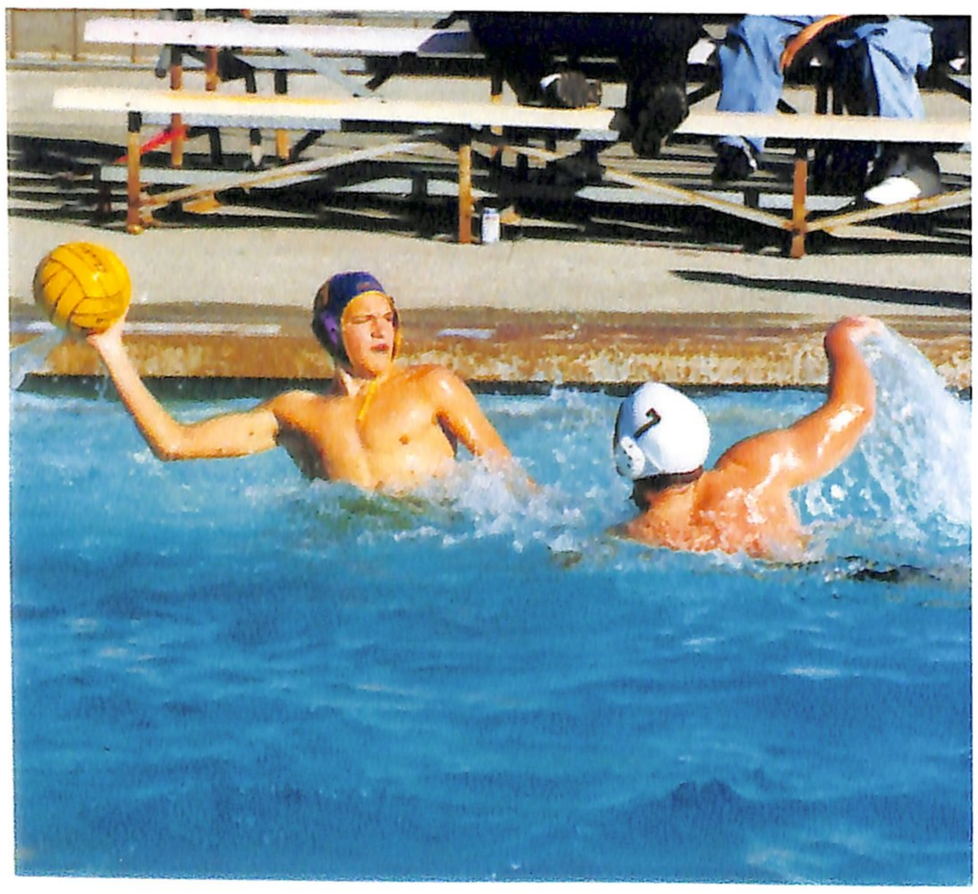

Varsity players Elliot McNeilis, Jesse Garcia, and Stephen Dean,' 02, prepared for the ritual nail check. "The game is a very physical sport," commented Jesse Garcia '02, "people always get hurt." Only the players know what really goes on under the water.

J.V. Women. Top: Coach Dennis, Stephanie Dittmer, Jacqueline Roses, Crystal Hamilton, Stefanie Boehme, Francesca Vaccaro, Patritia Scott, Pamela Scott, Rebecca aw, Nicole Peraa, Elizabeth Glashoff, Arin Loos.

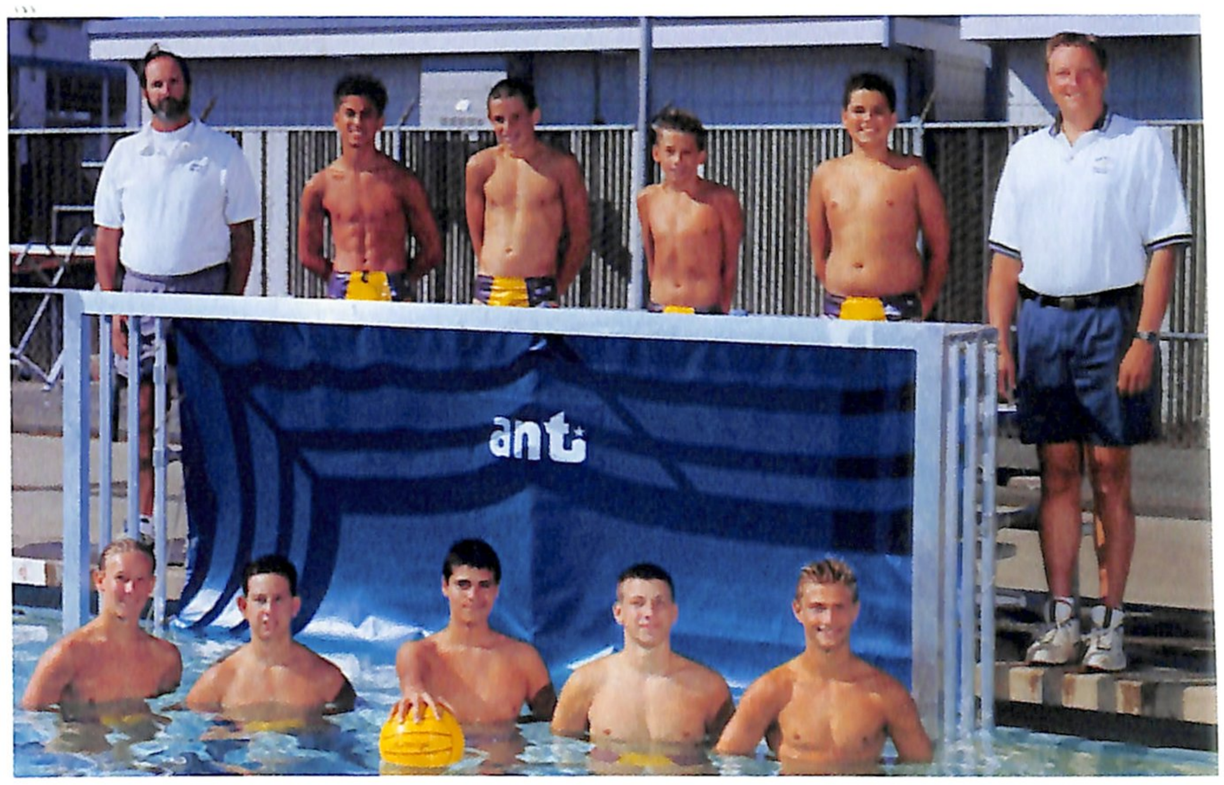

Chris Dean '03, quickly scans the pool for an open teammate ready to receive the ball. "Team work is what makes or breaks a team," said Chris. Team work is a value shared by teams.

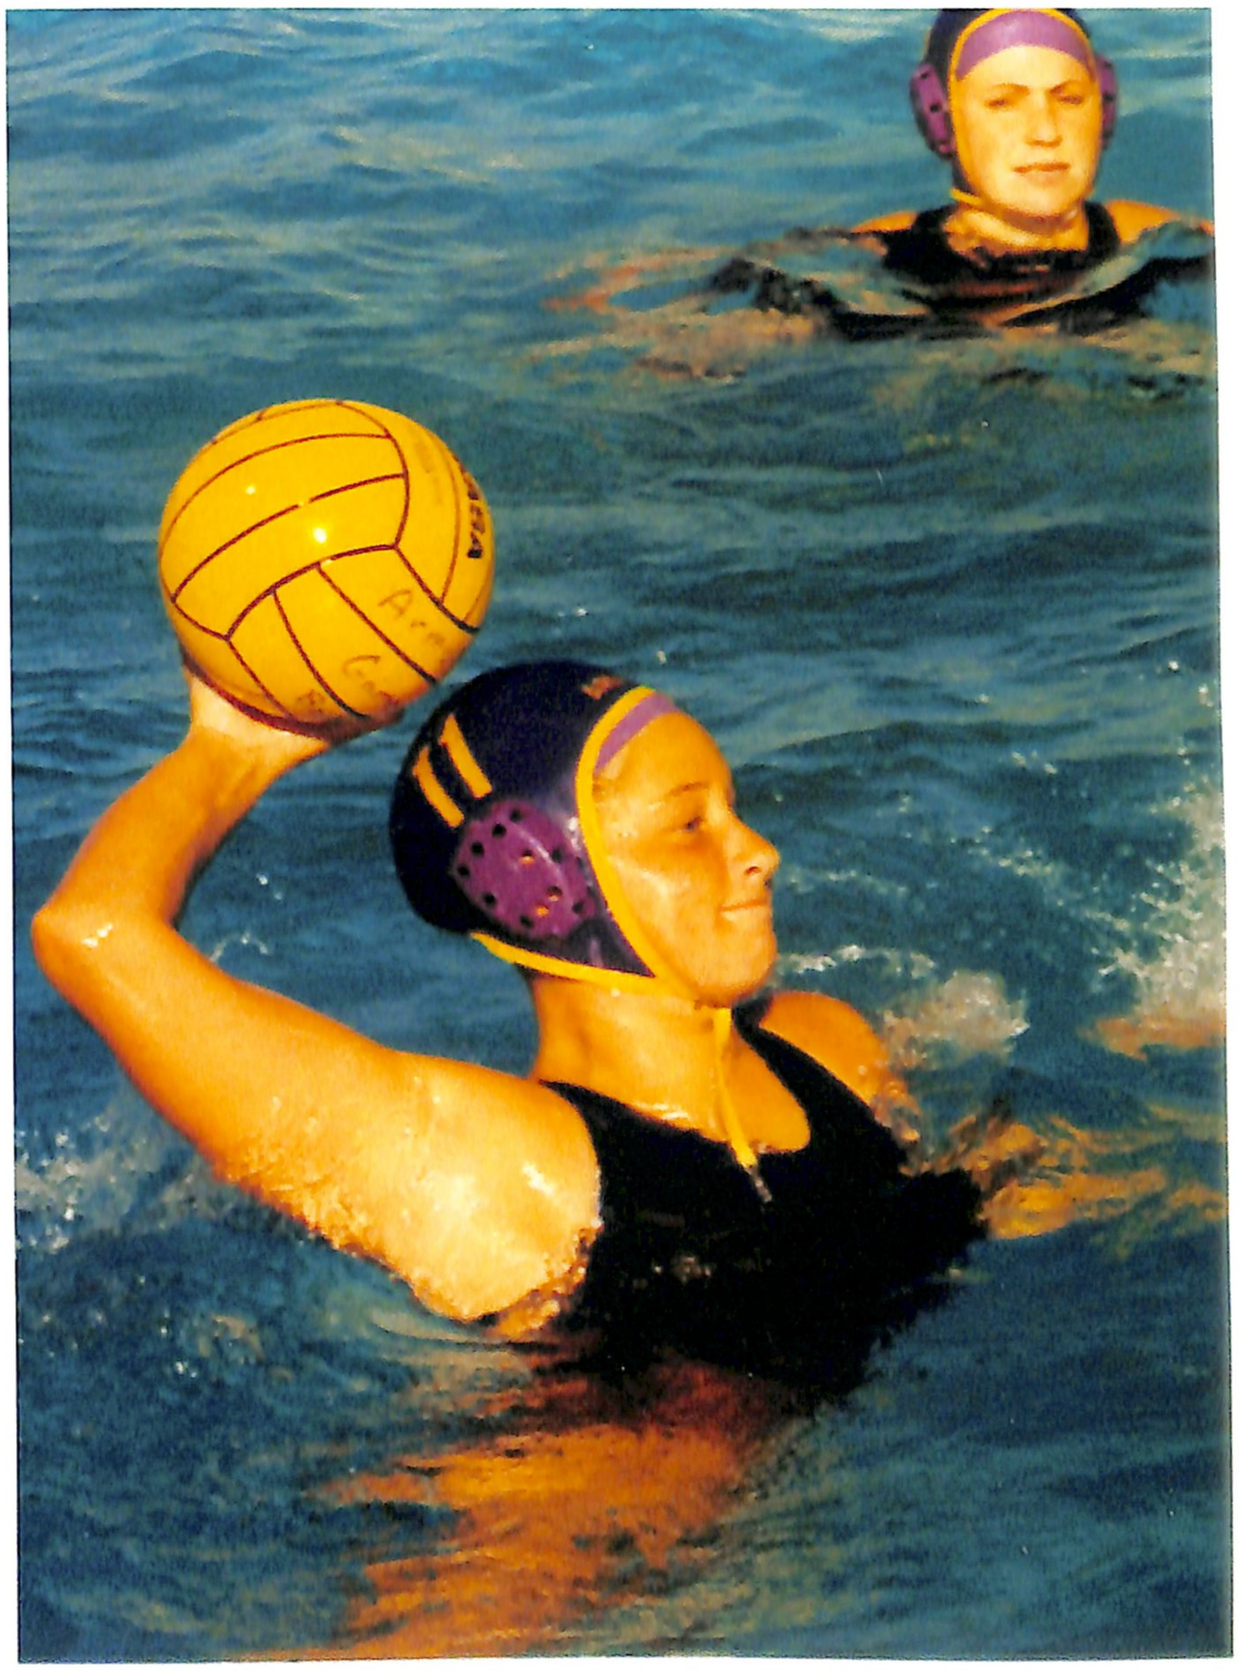

Rachael Bertram '02, guards her opponent during the Armijo vs. Fairfield game. "The competition between us and Fairfield is personal: they know us and we know them," said Rachael. The rivalry between AHS and FHS has always been strong.

J.V. Men. Top: Coach Dennis, Donny Henrich, Brian Holland, Darren Goring, Coach Dean, Trist Duncan, Coach Dean, David Leighton, Justin Boden, Nader Badri, Dale Lovrin, Adam McFarbin

Jacob Glashoff '01, intercepted the ball for an offense play. "Our speed was an edge over the teams we beat," commented Jabob. In waterpolo, speed was essential.

Kandace Walderhatler '01, prepared to score a goal. "It's a great feeling of being three-time M.E.L. champions," said Kandace. Each player understood taking a shot could make a difference.

Marathon

Inhale, exhale, inhale, exhale. Control the breathing. Step by step, step by step. Pace. Miles will be turned to steps. Pace. The steady rhythm of breath, movement and thought dictatated the event: distance running. "There is a lot of mental stress during a race because you're alone for most of the time. It really is brains over brauns," said Evan Massey '04. The Wednesday meets truly pushed the atheletes to the limit. Distance running was traditionally thought of as being boring, but this team went the distance: step by step.

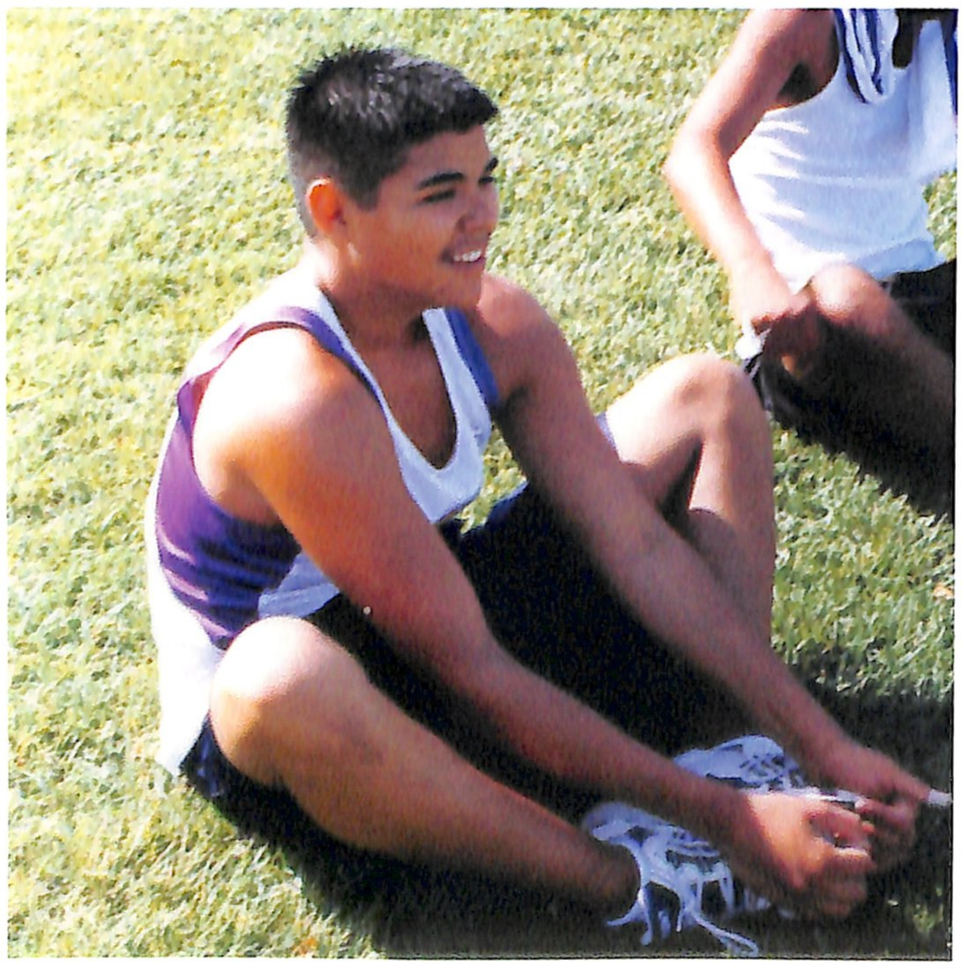

Story By: Karen Schaefer

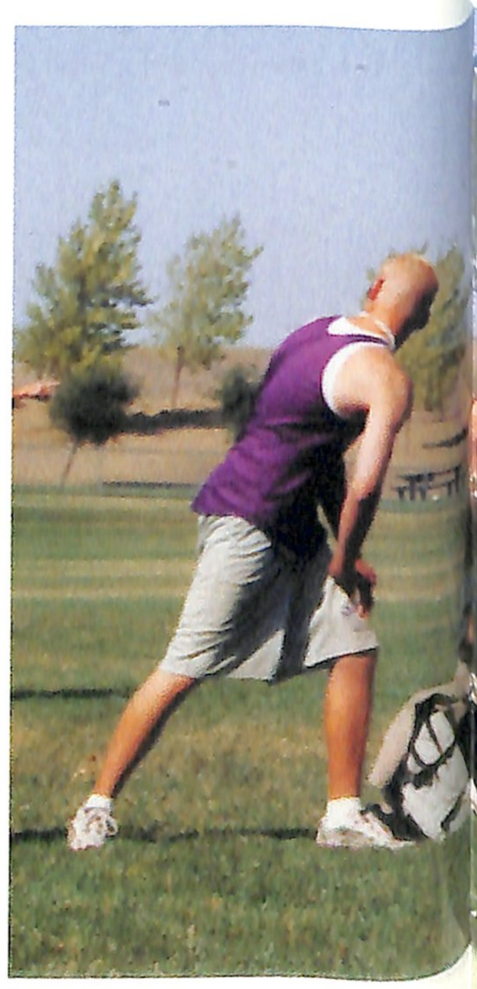

Running miles at a time helped not only physical strength, but also improved mental awareness. Tracy Allen '01, said, "Running long distance helped improve my self discipline and stamina. I really had to push myself to keep going."

Dedication was largely responsible for the teams success. Crystal Lee '02, said, "I have a lot of respect for everyone on the team." The players held great commaraderie.

Gabby Perusquia '02, set her goals for her endurance. "I always look ahead, I never look back," she said. Most other members commented on how they thought only of finishing.

Many members to the team joined to keep in shape for other sports. "I would do anything to keep in shape for other sports, even if it means standing in the cold, or running in the rain," said Markisha Gaines. Often times the meets were held dispite the extremes in weather.

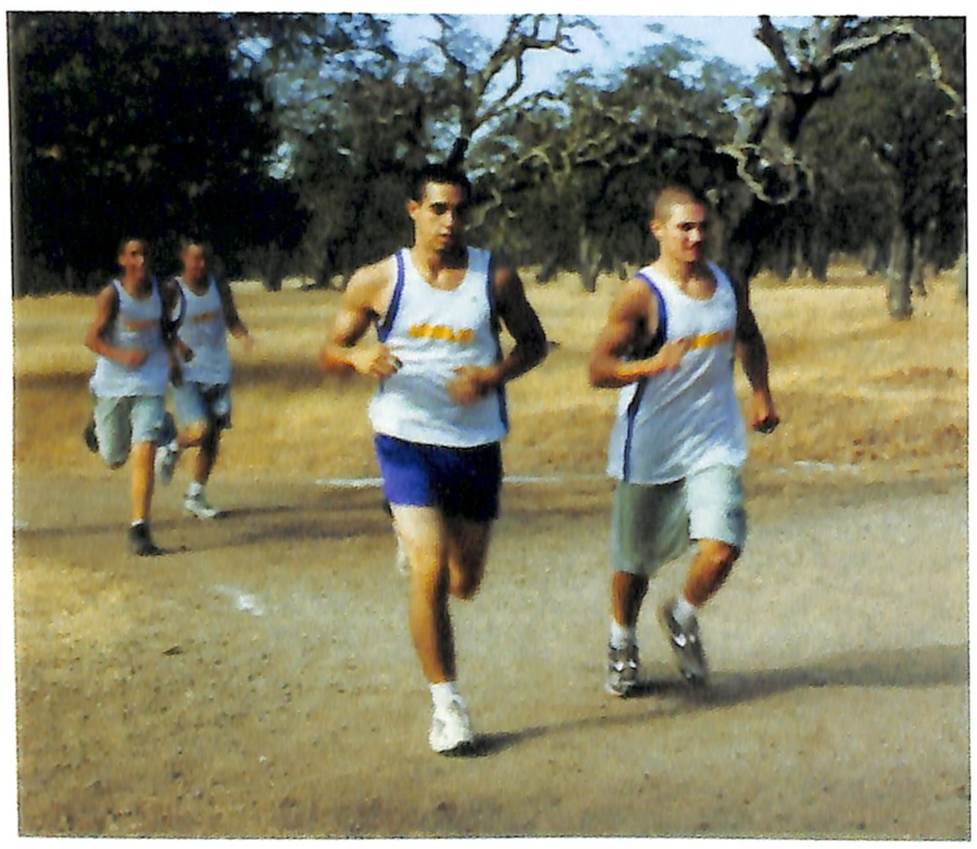

Varsity runner Allison Daum was one of the top runners of the girls team. She commented that, "Getting in the top five or ten feels great because I know I did my best. It's a feeling of great accomplishment." Allison is one of three successful Daum runners.

The members of the cross country team supported each other through each race. Varsity runner Nick Kimsey '01, said, "The main reason I joined cross country was because of the team unity." Many sports teams had a deep sense of connection.

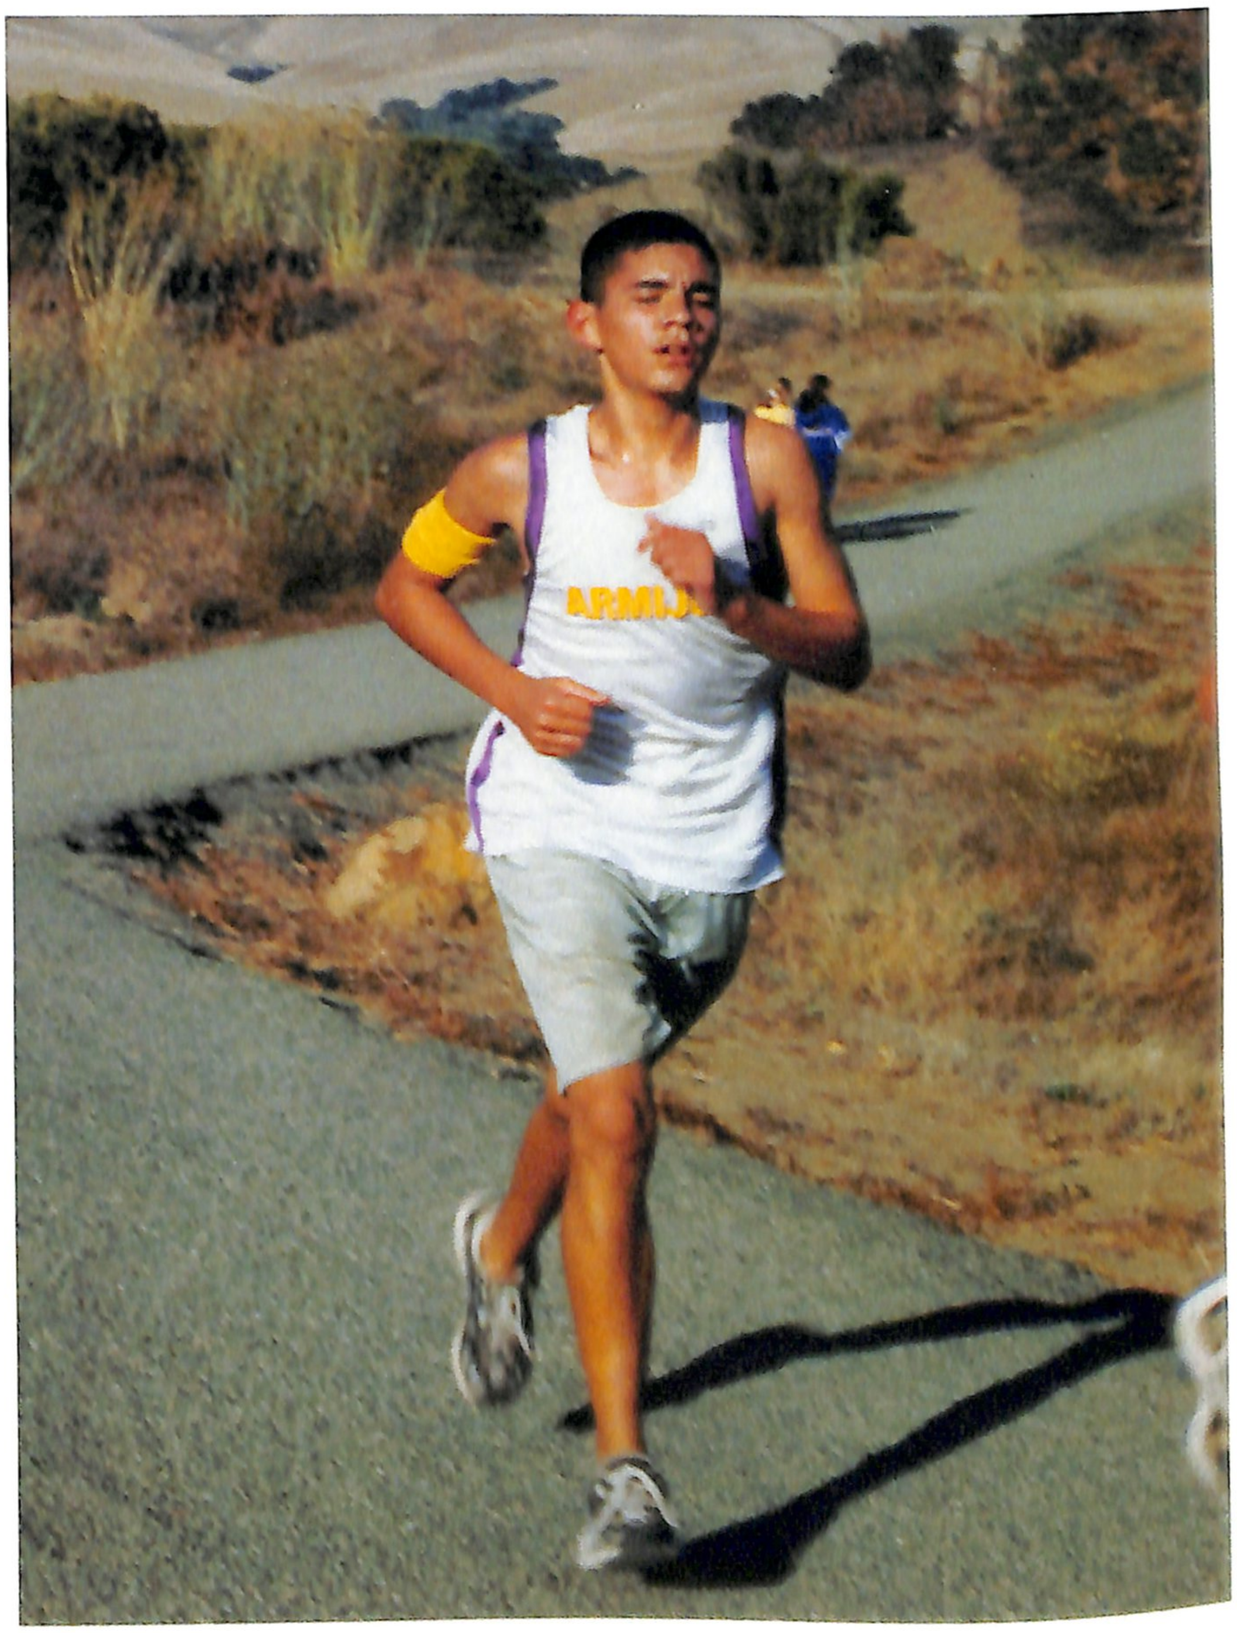

Junior Varsity runner Kim Daum '03, had a successful season. "This is my first year, and I like the new challenge." This was Daum's first year as a member of the cross country team.

Junior Varsity runner Stephanie Lanza was one of the top runners on the team. "It was a lot of work running in the different atmospheres. It really built up my endurance," she commented. Stephanie consistantly placed well in all races.

Runner Fausto Guzman didn't always race to win. "I just try to finish the race or beat some of my old records," he commented. Many athletes joined to challenge themselves against the terrain.

John Kelly '02, paced himself to in a varsity competition. "Running those distances made me realize my own limits and has given me more experience," he said. John has been in Cross County for three years.

Kickin It

Whether it is believed to be an individual challange or a team effort, those who played the game cared for little else than winning. Winning was never the entire issue with the men's soccer team, facing their fears and improving their game was also what made them strive for the best. And still, success was not only measured with a score or the facing of a fear, it was also measured in the bonds they formed and the improvement they made from the beginning to the very end of their memorable season.

For the Vintage game Varsity player Karl Beutner kicked a 60 foot goal to win the game 1 to 0. "I had more experience this year," he said. There were many experienced players on the team.

The Junior Varsity players were new to Armijo's teams. Player Brandon Porter said, "Our coach is really supportive. It helps a lot in the game."

Varsity player, Tavin Lanpheir '01, comments on it. "Because I am a senior there is going to be so much that I am going to miss, things like adrenaline rushes, and beating FHS. I will mostly miss just playing on the team, because we will always be getting closer, and more skilled as time goes on." The senior players on the team added leadership and cameraderie.

"I have played soccer for twelve years. I just love the game," said Varsity player Renato Calderon. "It's great having the familiarity of players on the team. You know you will always have support." The players on the soccer teams are all good friends; support and positive interaction help the players' confidence and playing ability.

Many times the members were exsauhsted, but carried each other on their support. "There is no 'I' in team, so any points we make, I share the credit with my team," said player Daniel Coral. Passing, blocking, and shooting were all parts of playing the game.

The players on the teams had respect for each others talents. Varsity player Scott Lamphier said, "We have a good keeper, an awesome offense, and our defense is savage! I can't help but be proud of what we have gone through this year."

Many members of the team have played for many years, said Varsity player Jason Ennis." I have been playing soccer since I was young. I have discovered a lot the game, mostly that the position of goalie takes a lot of leadership skills."

Many of the soccer players used different tactics. Varsity player Jon Hazeleaf '01, said, "I love playing with the variety." The different techniques created a hardcore element to the team.

The seniors on the Varsity team added were often role models for the new players. Tavin Lanpheir '01, comments, "I will mostly miss just playing on the team." Teammates were often as close as family.

Body Language

A man once said "If I had to do things all over I would have loved more people. I would have taken more drives to the beach. I would make more mistakes and take more naps. If I had to do things all over I would have made a difference. If I had to do things all over, but you see, I don't." Being an adolescent you do things you regret and things you wish you could forget. Life is made of the mistakes and the series of moments that cause you to think. The choices you make when you are pushed into that corner.

Whether a freshman or a senior you have made choices that make your moments your memories. You have been defined by your decisions, your past. Senior Monica Binion said, "I'm so glad yesterday is over."

You have to stop and look around once in a while, or else you could miss it.

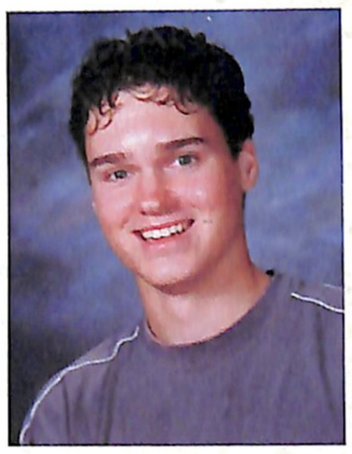

"What's crackin?" was Charles Madden's favorite saying. Charles knew he was a senior when he took the last final of the year. Charles has been involved with Armijo baseball and the cross country team. Hi role model in life would be his mom because she works hard. Charles's best experience at Armijo was getting to know everyone. His favorite thing to do with hi time is play baseball.

Dania Mallette's most important thing in her life right now is college. She looks forward to starting her college course. Dania knew she was a senior when she showed up the first day and everything she saw brought back memories. During Dania's years at Armijo she was involved in DECA, the school newspaper, and speech and debate. Her role model's are the people around her because she learns from them. What advice does Dania leave to upcoming seniors? Have a plan.

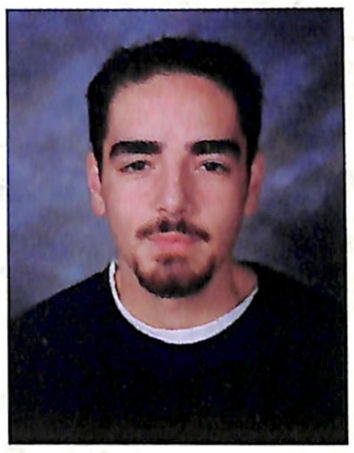

A collection of great people through out history are Erik's Ose's role models. Erik's best experience at Armijo is becoming a senior and graduating. The most important thing in Erik's life is his girlfriend. Erik knew he was a senior when he had no one to look up to and he tripped over a freshman. His advice to upcoming seniors is to enjoy it while it last. Erik's favorite saying was "Annie I love you."

Matt Howell knew he was a senior when his senior year started. The most important thing in Matt's life is his band A.R. His favorite thing to do above all else is to play music. Matt's role model is Flea, from the Red Hot Chili Peppers. Matt's best experience at Armijo was the walk out Armijo had in protest of year round schooling. Matt's advice to incoming freshmen was to stay away from trash cans.

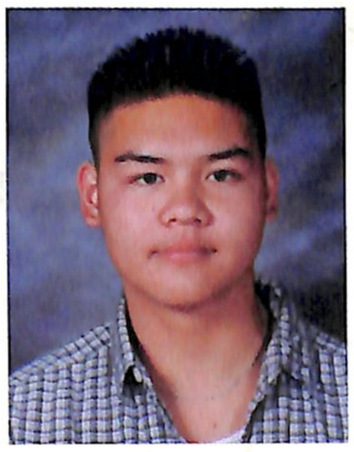

Shawn Bananzadeh's favorite thing to do with his spare time is to eat and watch T.V. Shawn has been involved with C.S.F., N.H.S., the KEY club, Leadership, Armijo Tennis, and the academic decathlon. His advice to upcoming freshmen would be to not let people try and tell you what to do. The most important thing in Shawn's life it his mom and dad because they have given him the opportunities to do the things he has always wanted to.

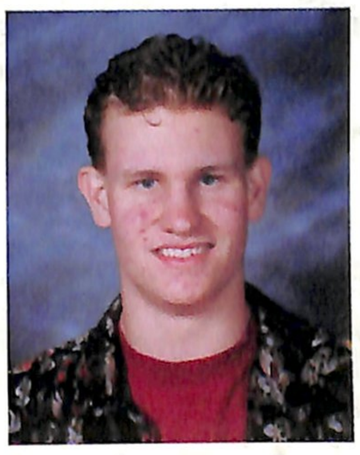

Jani Cotton's favorite thing to do with her spare time is to talk on the phone and kick it with her friends. Jani knew she was a senior when she passed the 11th grade. Jani's most important thing in her life is her car because it is her only means of transportation. Jani's best experience at Armijo was going to prom. Jani's favorite saying was, "school is cool."

Bruce Banouvong knew he was a senior when he had to spend more time doing college apps. than homework. The most important thing in Bruce's life is his parents and his brother because when no one else was there for him they were. Bruce's role model was Stone Cold Steve Austin because he dose not care what others think of him. Bruce's favorite experience at Armijo was going to the DECA nationals. Bruce's favorite saying was "I'll do it later."

Daniel Kucinski's best experience at Armijo was hopefully graduating. If Daniel could leave anything to Armijo he would leave marks in the parking lot from peeling out. Daniel's role model is Matt Ogle. Daniel has been involved with the award winning Academic Decathlon. In his free time Daniel likes to drive and play music. Daniel's most important thing in his life are those that are close to him.

When everyone knows your name and you don't know theirs... When the future is now...As each day passes you think to yourself: its almost my last day at Armijo...You can do a lot more and get away with it...You start to worry about college and there's no one to look up to...You're tired of school and you haven't even started yet...You come to school and then leave an hour or two later...You see a freshman stack under your shoe...You don't really care what you wear to school anymore...Lunch starts 3rd period and ends right before 6th...You can and paddle little freshmen... You can't get an appointment with a counselor...You have to know what you want to be for the rest of you life by next week...Your fighting to get out of the parking lot first at lunch...You can tell who's fake and who's real...You can say "I don't care, I'm a senior."...You dominate the school...Yours always in the parking lot...You pay hundreds of dollars for pictures...You can say "don't worry, I've got things under control," and people believe you...All your classes are for 1 semester...You talk of freshman year and it feels like ancient-history...The first day of school, you and your friends paint all over your windows, SENIORS, C O 2001 BABY...You only have 4 classes a day...You passed the 11th grade...Lower classmen run in fear of you...You get to leave school early and everyday seems like Friday...You can leave after lunch...

You know you are a senior, when...

To Adam Agot, being a good person and making good music are the most important things in his life. He knew that he was a senior the last day of his junior year. Music is essential in Adam's life, he aspires to become a world famous musician. When Adam is not in school he spends his time at The Guitar Center or playing his guitar. "Stand and shake the heavens" is Adam's favorite saying.

The most important thing in Laura Varcarcel's life is her boyfriend and her parents. Laura knew she was a senior when she had to start applying for colleges. Laura's favorite thing to do is shopping and spending time with her friends. Laura's role model in life is her mother because she is a strong woman. Laura's advice to upcoming seniors is to focus on your grades and don't let them slip. Laura's best experience at Armijo was winning Jr. class attendant.

Sean Ryan's favorite thing to do is play the guitar and to draw. Sean knew he was a senior when he was taller than other students at this school. The most important thing in Sean's life is his guitar, girlfriend, and then the family. Sean's role model in life is his grandfather because he was great artist. What would Sean say to upcoming seniors? "Stay out of the way of moving cars." Sean would leave his knowledge and his profound wisdom to Armijo. Sean's favorite saying is, "Cool Bean's."

"Have fun now because the time fly's!" That's Elizabeth Roses' advice to upcoming seniors. Elizabeth's best experience at Armijo was going to L.A. for a band competition and winning first place. Elizabeth's favorite thing to do with her time is to shop, go to N'SYNC concerts. Elizabeth has been involved with Leadership, KEY club, DECA, Band color guard, Cheerleading, and the Armijo Swimteam. Elizabeth's role model because she is a hard worker. Elizabeth's favorite saying "Your Physco."

The most important things in Romell Deguzman life is first of all God, then his friends, Chris, Anthony, and Rainer. Romell has been involved with the Armijo Drill team, DECA, and the Key Club. Romell's role model is Dirk Diggler because he is known for his stamina and his hard work. Romell says to upcoming seniors only buy a parking pass if you know that you will be driving to school. Romell's best experience at Armijo would be all the stupid things that Romell and his friends did that you only saw in movies.

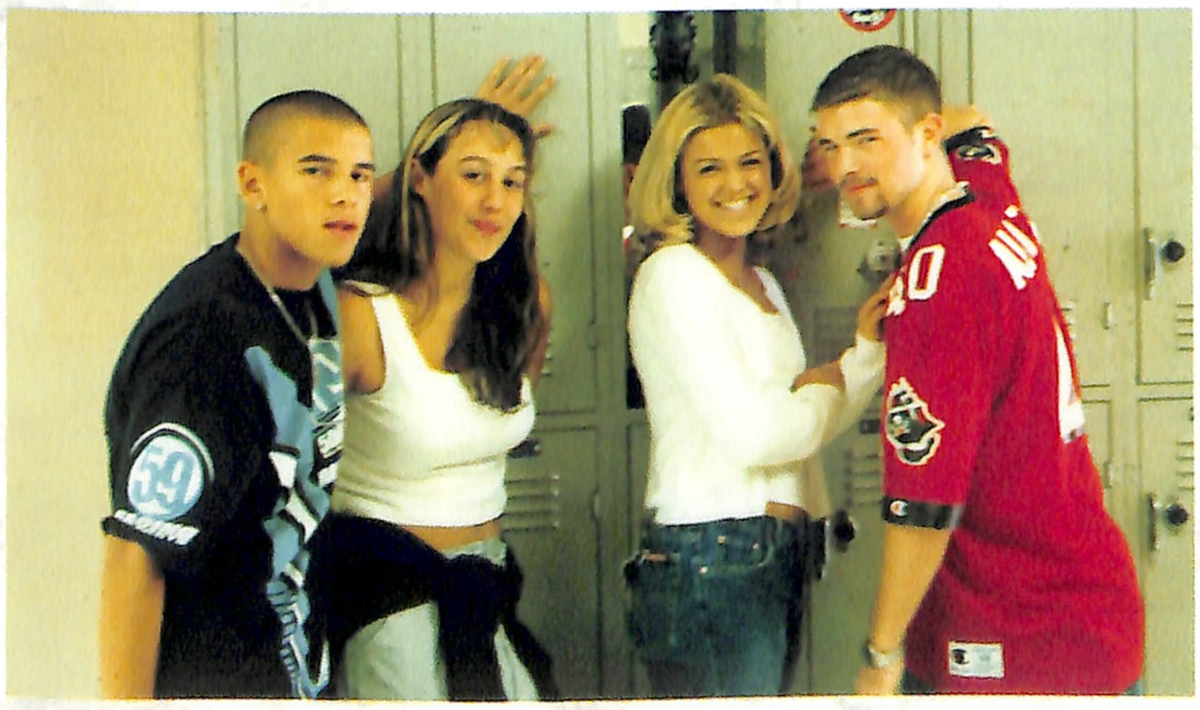

The most important thing in Eric Silva's life are his parents because they have been there for him. Eric knew he was a senior when he could leave class early. Eric's favorite thing to do is play golf. Eric has also been on the award winning golf team. Eric's role model is Tiger Woods. Eric's best experience at Armijo is hopefully graduating. Some advice to upcoming seniors? "Stay out of my way."

The most important thing in Alexis Connor's life is her grandmother because she always takes her side. Alexis knew she was a senior when she was not afraid to be late to class. Alexis has been involved with Leadership, AFS, Speech and debate, Drama club, and the school newspaper. Alexis's advice to upcoming seniors is to get involved and meet new people. If Alexis could leave one thing to Armijo it would be a golden scooter. Alexis's favorite saying is, "OK BEEEEE."

Dinna Estes knew she was a senior when she got picture information in the mail. Dinna's role model in life is her older cousin because they share a lot of common interests. Dinna has been involved with DECA and CSF NHS here at Armijo. The most important thing in Dinna's life is getting a education to a successful life. Dinna's favorite thing to do is spend time with her boyfriend Nick Davis. What about the upcoming seniors? Dinna says, "Take advantage of all the opportunities you have."

High school is the continuing saga of the everlasting stupidity of the people I know.

The most important thing in Miho Stoner's life are her friends and family. She knew she was a senior when junior year ended. Her favorite thing to do is hang out with her friends. She's been involved with band and color guard. Her advice to up coming seniors is to do well in school and you won't regret it. Her best experience at AHS was meeting new people.

Denise's Ochoa's favorite thing to do is hang out with her friends. During high school Denise was involved in AFS where she was president, and dance drill team. She knew she was a senior when she had to take senior pictures. Denise's role model is her best friend's mom because she is so cool. Denise's advice to upcoming freshmen would be to not wait until the last minuet to do everything. Denise's favorite saying is, "SPANXS."

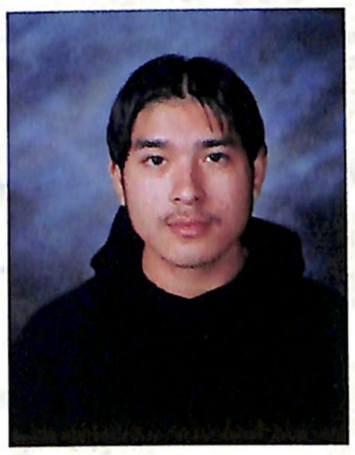

The best experience that Alma Hernandez had at AHS was the shaving cream fight at the end of the year. If she could leave anything to Armijo she would leave a good football team. Her advice to freshmen is to just do your best and don't sweat the rest. Her role model is Natalie Portman because she is a hard worker, down to earth and a good person. Alma was the Armijo drum major for the school band. Alma's favorite thing to do is to enjoy a good sun set with a good friend.

The most important thing in Monica Binion's life is Jesus. Jesus is also Monica's role model in life. Monica knew she was senior when she passed all her junior classes. Monica's favorite thing to do with her time is to hand out with her friends and to do totally random stuff. Monica's advice to upcoming seniors would be don't park under the lamp post in the parking lot. Monica's favorite saying is, "I like boys..."

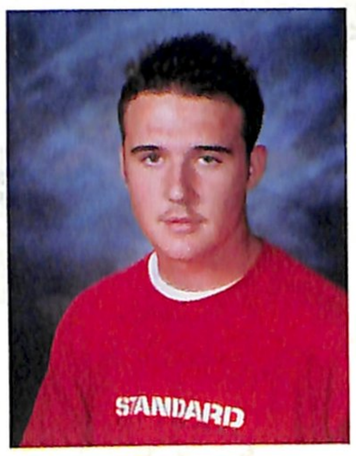

The most important thing in Marco Berrios' life is his family because no matter what they will always be there for him. Marco knew he was a senior when the pressure of graduating finally caught up to him. Marco has been actively involved with the Armijo drama program. Marco's favorite thing to with his spare time is to play with his band and to act. Marco's advice to upcoming freshmen would be to not screw up in ANY of your classes no matter how dumb you think they are.

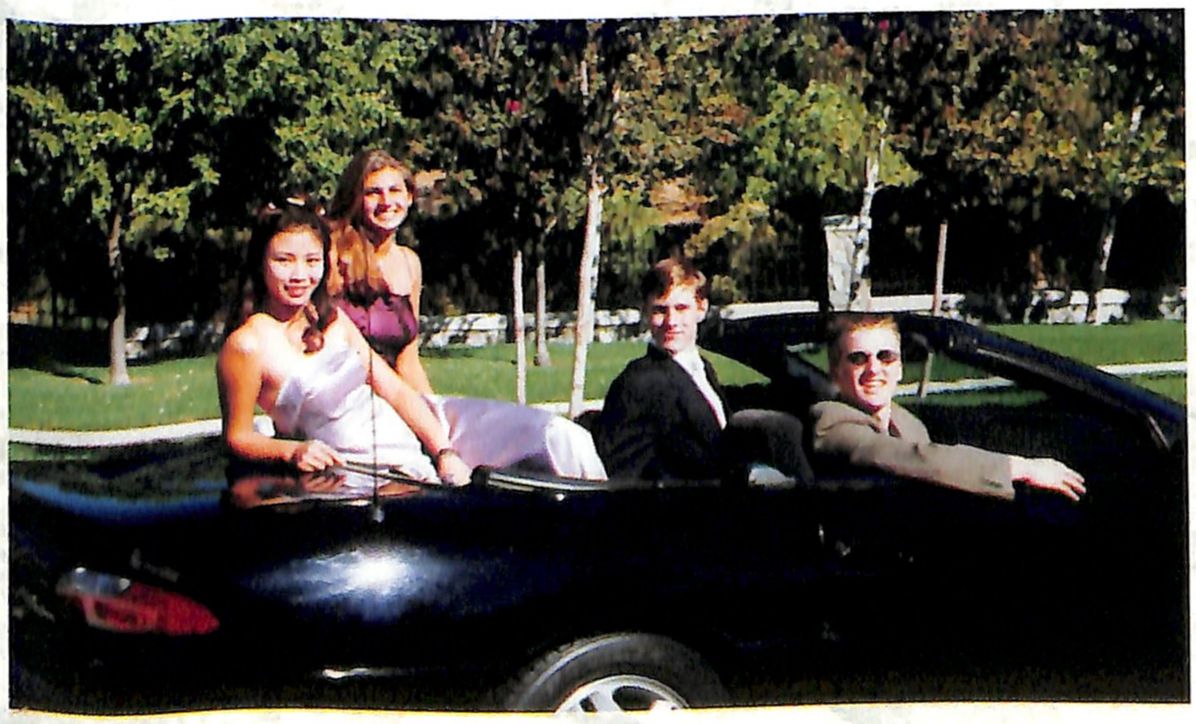

Over the past four years at Armijo Brittany Watson has been involved with softball and volleyball. Brittany's is her older sister Tiffany because she is a very strong person. Brittany's advice to upcoming seniors is to make every year the best. The most important thing is Brittany's life are her friends and family because they stand behind me. Brittany's favorite thing to do with her time is to play sports and hang out with her friends.

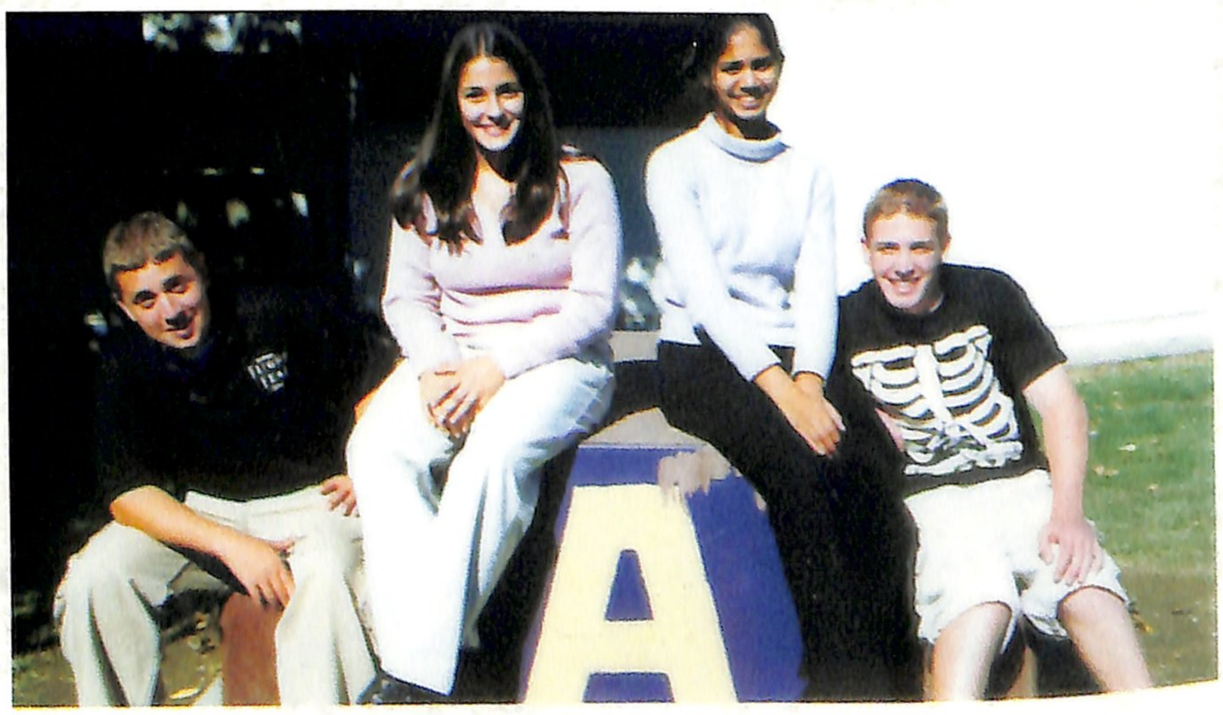

Shawn O'Brien knew he was a senior when he came back to school for his senior year. The most important thing in Shawn's life is his family because they take care if him. Shawn's favorite thing to do with his time is to ride his BMX freestyle bike. Shawn's advice to upcoming seniors is to do all your homework. His best experience at Armijo was getting to have fun with all of his friends. If Shawn could leave anything he would leave some money so they could fix it up a little bit.

Cheryl Leighton knew she was a senior when cutting class seemed so tempting. Cheryl's favorite thing to do is relax. Throughout high school she was involved in swimteam and school plays. The most important things in her life are her friends and family because they are always there for her. Her best experience at AHS was being able to sing the national anthem at football games. Her advice to upcoming seniors is to not worry about the future, make the best of the present.

word of mouth

I've never heard of junioritis, but I think I have it... the junior class knows how to party, baby!... we are definitely the most spirited class on campus... junior year is the most strenuous... I can't wait to be a senior!... we cause the most trouble for Linda... definitely the best looking... spirited, I guess... thank heavens I'm no longer an underclassman... a bunch of drama freaks... we got stuck with the Computer Literacy requirement... I can drive! I can drive!... no more cheese fries for me, I like to clog my arteries elsewhere. Like, McDonalds... what are we? The second class of the new millennium?... a lot of them need an attitude adjustment... The class of 2002 has the best looking girls...

sophomores

We are dedicated... my brother and his friends trashed me even though I'm not a freshman... it's a breeze... I have Madame Hause for French II... I'm turning 16 in two months and I'm saving up for a car... there are some cute sophomore guys but I have a senior in mind!... a perk of being a sophomore? Not being a freshman... 2003 is the best class! Why? I don't know, don't ask me why... we can't go to prom but we can go to the sweetheart dance! (Make sure you put that I was being sarcastic)... I really like high school, but my brother told me that will change with time... my hardest class is Honors English with Mrs. Radesky... because I can't drive, my mom picks me up from school.

I was really scared on my first day of high school. It's not what I expected at all... the upperclassmen aren't that much bigger than me... the IB program is such a challenge. It's exciting to be a part of... I hate PE. No kidding... I go off campus almost everyday to Barb's or Joe's downtown... I hope they don't do enforce closed campus!... I'm so busy with school and clubs that I'm involved with... all the ladie's love me but only one has my heart... we're spirited!... we're not spirited. what are you talking about? I tried out for the freshman basketball team but I got cut... seniors are really friendly when your brother is cool...

This morning I woke up later than usual to the radio. My alarm clock was blasting Jon-B's newest single "Pleasures U Like". I dragged myself out of bed half alive and put little effort in getting ready for school today. I just didn't feel like it.

I arrive at school in time for the day's leadership senate meeting where we revised, and re-wrote leadership's constitution. The activity director, Mr. Vogelpool thought this was important to do.

In first period honors chemistry with Mr. Ortiz, we did a lab. Ask me in two seconds and I won't remember what the lab was about. Reactions, equations... My lab partner and I do the lab incorrectly and realized that at the end of the period. We had to go back and do it over again and we rush. Before, we had made the mistake of using the wrong measuring tool.

In second period, I worked on the assignment given by my teacher and time goes by slowly. The rest of the period dragged on.

For lunch I went to the CSF-NHS meeting in the band room. I sign in, talk to some friends and listen to the announcements.

It's all academics the rest of the day except 6th period which is drama. Let's not talk about that.

Hill

7:00 a.m.
Wake up, take a shower
7:30
Eat oatmeal, rush, get a stomach ache.
8:04
Get hit in the head with various volleyballs in PE
9:10
Take notes in World Civ. Think about Laurence of Arabia
10:10
Talk to my peers about world conditions, solutions and literature. Ms. Henderson addresses a topic for discussion. Learn.
11:11
Run to AC-1 and have lunch with Brandon Sudat and Mike Marsden. Mike and I do out handshake and watch "Whose Line is It Anyway?" and "The Simpsons". Laugh, laugh, hit my leg on the side of the art table. Choke, fall, laugh.
12:00 p.m.
Go top physical science. Talk to Mr. Glick about the environment and the wonders of the universe, and then we play Beatle's songs on his guitar and we do a lab.
1:00
Go to AP Art and do my pastel project. Talk to Susana Zialcita about life and muse.

Bridget Beaudry

2:00
Do math, get confused, sharpen my pencil and stick it in Cristyn Gunther's hair.
3:00
Walk home, smell flowers, get an allergy attack and I see my house my mom gives me a hug.
3:30
Wash, eat and do normal routines.
4:00
Draw pictures of beautiful people and study.
5:00
Read a book and talk to my sister about her day and mine.
6:00
Eat the food my mom cooks and yeah, I guess that's fun.
6:30
Go to Solano College for a Spanish class.
8:30
Get home and watch old movies.
10:30
Think about today and tomorro. Feel bored, go to sleep.

Lazilt woke up at 6:40 a.m. I changed into ROTC uniform, brushed my teeth and combed my hair.

I hurried to eat breakfast: a bowl of Fruit Loops and milk, cup of peachers and a glass of water. I remembered to bring a bag of Sunchips and a bottle of water for lunch.

Rushed out of the house and dropped off my brother to his school, then I was dropped off to school: each of us by our dad.

I went to my locker and just hung out with my friends. I went to my first period english class and completed the same, boring work. I went to my second period computer lit. class and said "Hi" to some friends on the way. Finished with the same papers. Next came third period biology. I went to class and hurried off to work. Then came lunch, I hurried to my locker and went to play chess. The bell rings and I went to algebra in C8. The class is the most noisy and disruptive class I know. Exhausted, I went to my locker and went to PE. I played volleyball and later changed back into my ROTC uniform. Finally came sixth period Aero-Space. I hurried to class and quickly shinned my shoes, adjusted my windbreaker and checked everything else that looked crooked. I then went outside with my fellow students and practiced drilling. When school ended, I went to CMT bank across the street to pick up trash for Key Club. I then went back to the ROTC room to practice drilling again.

Speak Your Mind

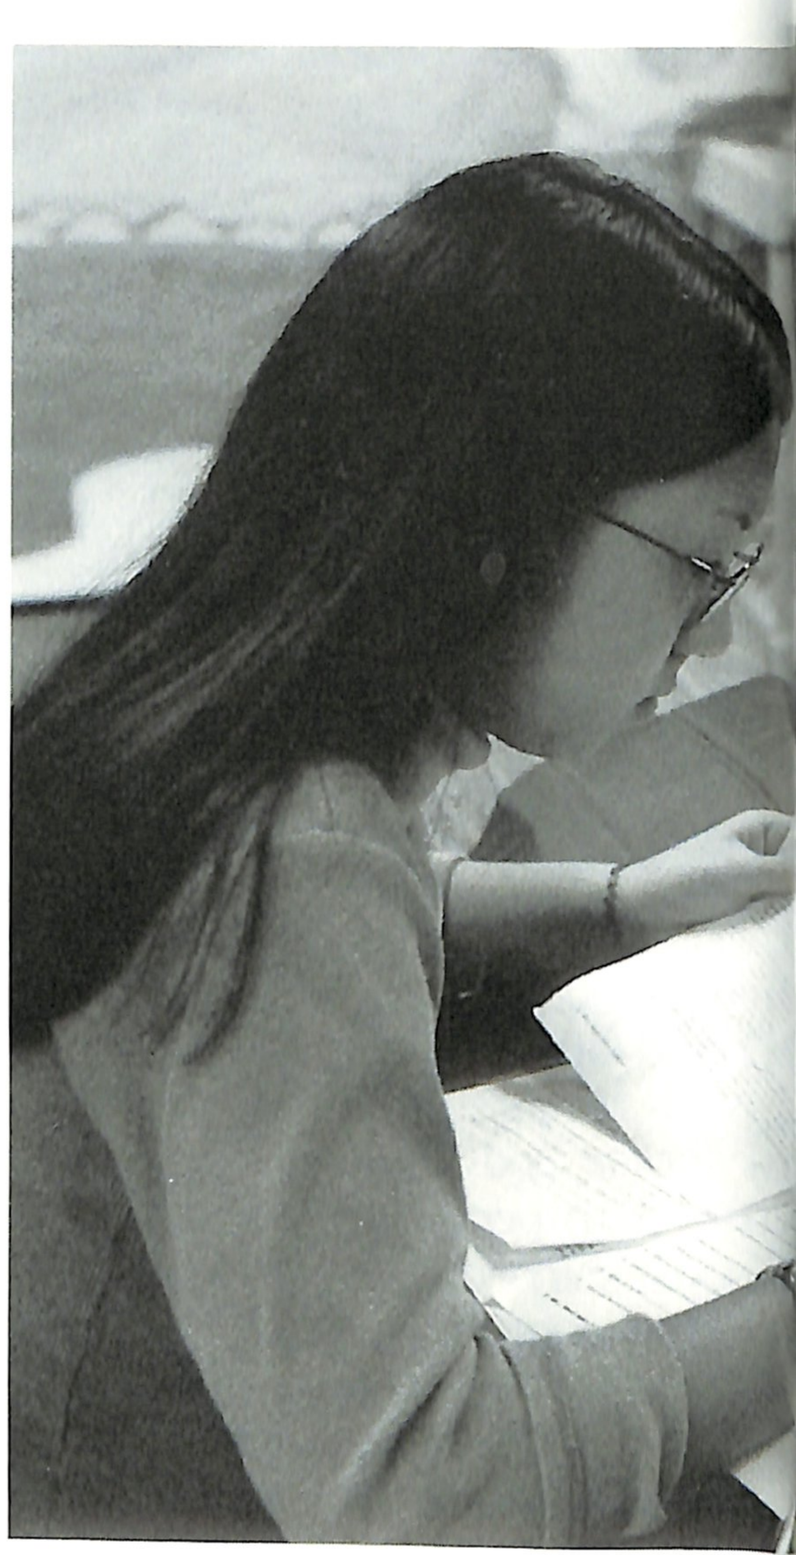

What do you think about? Because what you think about is what makes you different from everyone else. Someone might have the same color hair. Or they might even have the same exact shirt. But no one has the same mind.

Have you exercised your mind? Academic classes stretched your imagination and strained your brain power. And you could be proud of the knowledge you gained. After all a strong mind makes a stronger person. Have you explored you mind? Clubs like the Black Student Union and Speech and Debate encouraged you to reach inside yourself and express your thoughts. You could be proud of who you are and even more proud of your ideas...

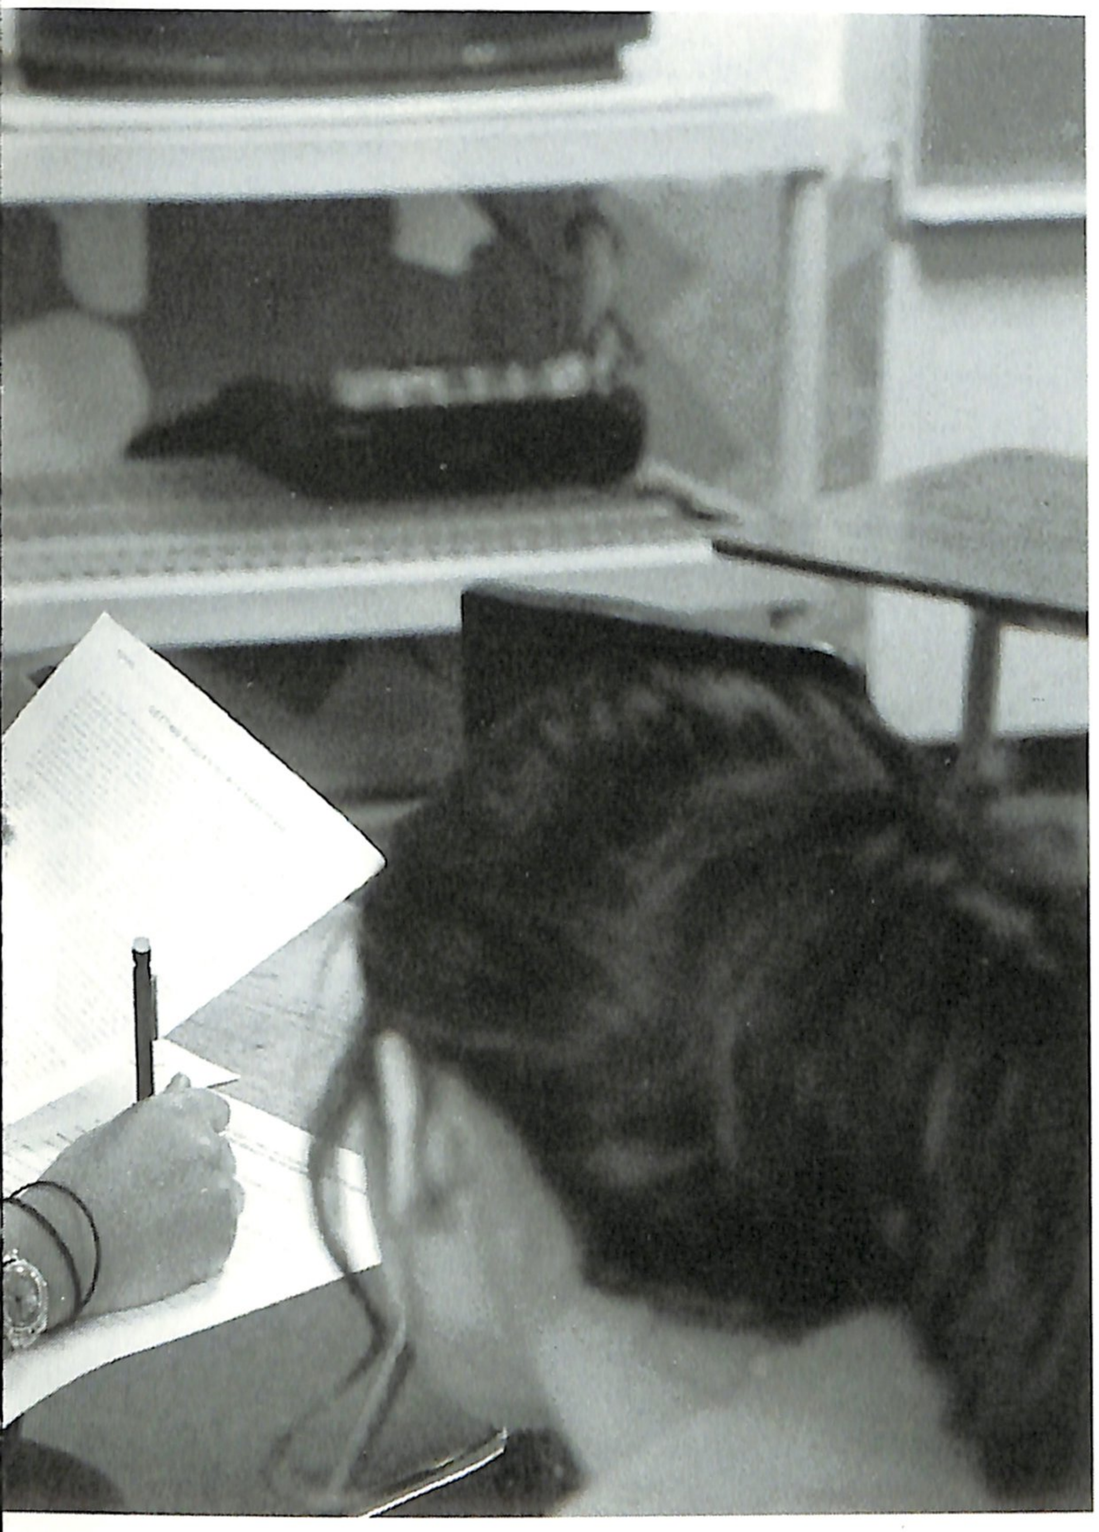

So be yourself. Think for yourself.

A mind is a terrible thing to fake.

Mrs. Wilson-Frost conducted book reports in her IB classes every six weeks. "I have many great and dedicated students," stated Mrs. Frost. She enjoyed listening to her students talk about their books.

The International Baccalaureat program challenged students to a well-balanced, internationally ranked education. The class of 2004 was the first class offered the rigorous program, offering the opportunity to earn academic credit at many colleges for each test passed. "I'll get better offers for college, and it's better off in the long run," said Jason Nielson when asked why he chose to participate in IB. Most importantly, it was a program in which students got prepared academically, philosophically, and civically for the rigors of college work.

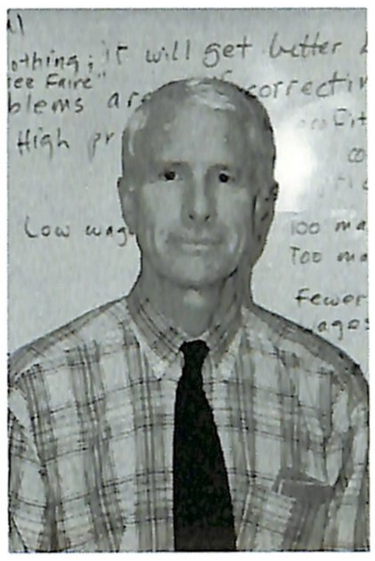

The IB program was for diciplined students who were not afriad of working hard to achieve their goals. "The program gives students who are willing to exceed there goals many great benefits," stated Mrs. Wilson-Frost, IB Coordinator.

Mr. Bryan and Precious Brown were going over an algebra 2 problem. "This was a required class for me because I'm in the pre IB program," commented Precious. Freshman were required to take high level math classes, beginning with Algebra two and eventually taking IB math courses.

Kaye Santos watched carefully as the pendulum swung back and fourth. "I had to pay close attention to the timing and the pendulum during this lab." commented Kaye. She was the leader of her group.

Mathew Chambers and two of his classmates performed a pendulum experiment in Mr. Mitchell's class. "I really enjoy the IB program because it challenges me to do my very best." Mathew said. Mr. Mitchell was the science teacher for IB students.

Jonathan Clark used power tools in a productive way in his shop class. "I like to construct things that could someday be used for something that it wasn't meant to be," he said. In Shop class, students were required to build model sheds to demonstrate their craftsmanship.

Bridget Beaudry created an oil painting in AP Studio Art. "That painting is supposed to symbolize people's personalities in geometric terms," she said. In A.P Studio Art, students are graded on quality, concentration, and breadth.

Josh Drake and Josh Elsbernd made objects in Ceramics class. "I learned patience and the art of working with your hands," Drake said when asked what he learned in the class. Drake went on to make a clay surfboard.

Billy Yeh draws a charcoal based on a baby photo in Advanced Placement Studio Art. "This class allows me to explore my art...I do a lot of soul searching in this class." In AP Studio Art students compiled portfolios of 24-40 pieces of high caliber art to be judged by the college board.

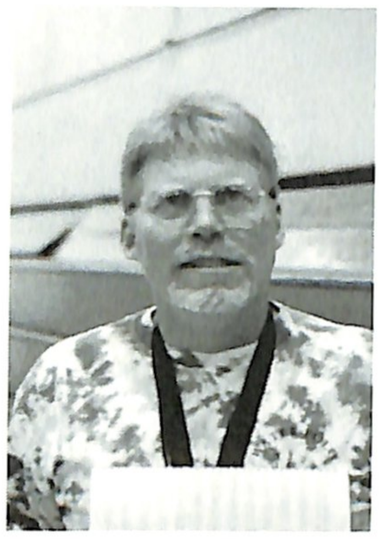

The clay was thrown, the story was written, the lap was run, all in the name of electives. "Once my friend made me a pot and I thought it was ugly, but now I understand why: it's not as easy as it looks," said Orvanh Thammasen. When school was on the brain, students thought of tests in Calculus and the Outside Reading requirement for English, what was often overlooked were all the non-traditional ways of learning. Not only did Oravanh learn to make a pot and understand the complicated task of making something beautiful with clay as a medium, but students in all grades and course studies learned things that weren't traditionally thought of as "academic".

Junior students sat around table in the library discussing college admissions. "This program has helped me realize how important it is to plan ahead about college," stated Fallon Carmichael. She is planning on applying to UC Davis, San Diego State, and UCLA.

The UC Davis Educational Talent Search was a program designed for underprivileged or first generation college bound students. "UC Davis ETS has pointed me in the right direction and has helped me to stay on track so that I can achieve my goal of entering college," said Jeana Svendsen, one of seventy students who participated in the program.

Rafael Rivera, helped students prepare for requirements they needed to get into the college of their choice. He taught valuable test-taking skills, study skills, and how to get the most out of their classes during the monthly meetings. He met with students individually semi-annually, to make sure they were on track of achieving their goals. "This program has really helped me to learn about the requirements I need to have to get into the college of my choice," commented Jesica Godoy Rafeal told students they needed to start thinking about where they want to apply. "College doesn't just happen, it's planned," he said. He was always avaliable to help students find the right college for them.

Rafael Rivera, head of the program, discussed the importance of college with Tao and Eulanda. "I have learned that I have to take care of business before pleasure," stated Eulanda. She planned to apply to UC Davs and Sac State.

Sheena, Frankie, and Andre sat with Rafael discussing school before they got started. "Visiting colleges has helped me to find out what I'm looking for in a college," said Sheena Brown. Members of ETS recieved extra help from Rafeal.

Terri Meas used the library to catch up on some work. "The library is a good place to study, it is quiet," she said. Many students took advantage of the opportunity to study during class.

Justin Wharten looked up a book. "Being a TA for the library is worth while, but if you don't have the credentials...you can forget about it," he said. Library T.A.'s were given the responsibility of helping other students.

While doing a research paper, students looked through a card catalogue looking for that perfect book. "Teachers make it mandatory to use books now that the internet is around," said Jeanine Shafer.

Carlo Malinao took full advantage of school computers. "I am looking forward to having a job somewhere along the line of computers, and I feel this class will help me to reach that," he said. Carlo hopes to attend a four-year University with a major in computers.

Computers purchased with Digital High Monies filled the computer labs and gave each teacher a computer and each student a way to access a new wave of information. Mrs. Fout had been an integral part of the library for years. "To sit down with a book in your hands is the best way to learn to read. When you read, it is the best way to learn to write. If we really want to bring up test scores at Armijo, we should have ever student reading a book every week," said Mrs. Fout. She assisted with research, scholarships, and running the school via information. Mr. Keisling and Mr. Grey were not only teachers but Co-technology coordinators. They helped to ensure that students and teachers had access to the school's network.

Madame Hause looked over a student's shoulder during French class. "Because I teach French I through IV, I have the opportunity to watch the progression of my students intellectually an as people. The joy of teaching is making a positive difference in someone's life," she said. Madame Hause had been teaching for 27 years.

Hola, Bonjour, Guten Tag, Hello. No matter how it was said, a simple greeting was the welcoming call to most classes. In a time when there were almost as many Spanish-speaking markets on North Texas Street as there were English-speaking ones and colleges advocate studying-abroad, a foreign language was definitely an addition to a student's academic endeavors. Crossing over the border from Mexico, or crossing the Pacific Ocean from the Philippines, many students experienced their time America as a change in their way of life. It was suddenly neccessary to speak two languages as fluently as any native. Students were given the choice of "English as a Second Language" classes and taking their native language as an elective. "I think that it is funny to be in a class with people who try to learn my native language. Sometimes I hear how it sounds when they speak Spanish and I think that it is the way it sounds when I speak English," said Ismael Ramirez.

Wan Yang studied before taking the finals for the first time at Armijo. "Finals are hard...I have never taken finals here before so I will see," he said when asked about the challenging end of term test.

With PSAT, SAT I, ACT, and all the SAT II tests, testing was a primary part of the year for upperclassmen. The first step in the long trail of tests is the Practice Standardized Aptitude Test, which was commonly referred to as the PSAT. Preparing for this test, Jennifer Yeh, '03 "did a number of things: made flash cards for vocabulary, went to Kaplan, did practice problems in prep books, and played games on her Kaplan CD." As a Junior, William Rodruiguez was glad the student offered the PSAT. "It'll help me understand what the SAT will be like this spring," he said. With the addition of scholarships, even more students attended the crowded rooms on Saturday mornings. Mrs. Ann Evers coordinated everything from where each student would take the tests to sending them in and administering them. "The state of California has placed such importance on testing our students. There are financial rewards for students and teachers as well as schools," she said.

Mrs. Brown is sorting through one of the many piles that end up on her desk. "It can be hectic," she said. Mrs. Brown worked at the switchboard for ten years before she moved to the Counselling Office.

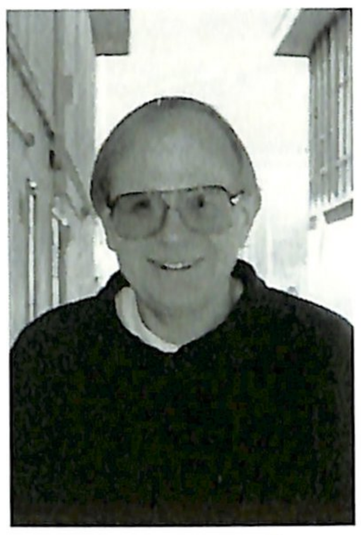

"Armijo is like the circus, once it gets in your blood, you can't walk away from it," Said Principal Rae Lamphier. Administrators were seen walking around, but most didn't have the opportunity to also experiance happenings behind the scenes. Mrs. Franey was the treasurer, money was given to her for everything from the rush to purchase a parking pass to the scramble for a prom bid. In the annex office, Mrs. Ann Anderson dealt with class changes and Mrs. Rollins and Mrs. Addison found their place of refuge. Claudia Burlingham roamed the halls in search of students out of class. "I want to do my part to make this a better place for kids yet to come," she said. Much of the staff was overlooked by students, but their vital roles helped create a well oiled administrative machine.

Sabrina Belara and her partner examined tissue under a microscope in Mr. Erwins anaotmy class. "The microscope lab was very interesting because it let you see things that weren't noticible to the naked eye," commeted Sabrina. Anatomy students participated in many hands on experiments.

Justine Anderson and Jennifer Lewis conducted a pulley lab. "When we do hands on activities, it's easier to see how and why things happen," stated Justine. They were in Mr. Mitchells physical science class.

John Link lit a strip of magnesium on fire during a chemistry experiment. "Labs are better than books," said John. Chemistry students were required to participate in labs throughout the year.

Justin Rovnanik stuck a big chunk of copper wire into a flame. "I've learned that when copper mixes with fire it produces a green flame." he said. Chemistry students were challenged to determine types of metals based on the color of their flame.

Labs were a large part of grasping the challenging concepts that were presented in science. Physical science students experimented with the laws of nature. "Labs give you a feel for what you're doing and they help you understand concepts better." said Michael Cruz. Their experiments consisted of mass, volume, speed, and force. Chemistry students studied the elements and experimented with compounds. Chemistry labs have helped me learn chemicals react with eachother." stated Hector Ontiveros Biology students were given the opportunity to dissect a variety of things including lamb's hearts and cow's eyes. "I like doing labs because I get to work with my friends and I like to use microscopes." commented Beau Hawkin. Anatomy did labs to help them identify different structures of the body. Labs helped all the students to understand hands on the concepts they learned in books and lectures.

Thanks Mr. Sechler, for being so understanding and sane while everyone else went crazy. You're appreciated more than you realize.

Colophon

This year the theme for our book was "Voices". The theme was conceptualized by Cynthia Chong, Susana Zialcita, Joy Gajkowski and a slew of people from Herff Jones at a theme and cover conference held in May of 2000. The book was 280 pages and produced by Herff Jones. The printed 1450 books sold for $46.00-$65.00 (depending on the time of year it was purchased). La Mezcla's job number was 7042. Fonts we used in the book include: GenXCrumble for headlines, FiletPlain for body copy and Element for sub headlines. The cover was conceptualized at the May 2000 conference and was done by artist Issac ppppp. All layouts, pictures and graphics were designed and taken by the staff. Our wonderfully understanding, calm, collected, polite sales representitive was Deana Clevenger. Any duplication of ideas or omissions was not intentional.

Key Club

Kiwanis Educating Youth

Through out the year the Key Club was engaged in their school and community. They helped many people through the performance of several community service projects and volunteering regularly at places like Bransford Elementary School and CMT Credit Union. "I like to give back to my community and be a role model for the little kids, so they can do the same later," said junior Vickie Monegas. At the end of the year, some members had the opportunity to attend the National Key Club Convention and meet other "Key Clubbers". The actions taken by the Key Club portrayed their dedication to the community.

What was your favorite things about Key Club?

"I enjoyed Bransford Camp. I was one of the counselors. It was fun taking care of the little kids."
-Andrew Om '01

"The Regional Fall Training Conference was great. I learned things about Key Club and we did a service project."

The historian is responsible for capturing all of the club's greatest moments.

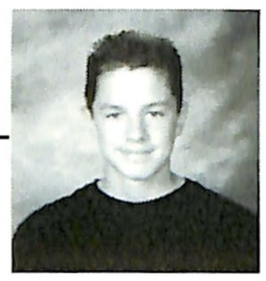

FFA

Future Farmers of America

The Future Farmers of America have a reputation of successes around Armijo, this year was no exception. The FFA competed in statewide competitions is areas such as showmanship, speaking and on the lighter side a lip sinking contest. "At conferences we met new people, learned better leadership skills, and had fun in the process," commented Lacie Prince. While the FFA is a fun organization to be a part of it also requires a vast amount of hard work. Students with animals fed them twice a day everyday, including weekends. "It was fun having an animal but the work output is incredible," said FFA president Christina Story. This year the FFA has not only maintained their excellent reputation but exceeded it.

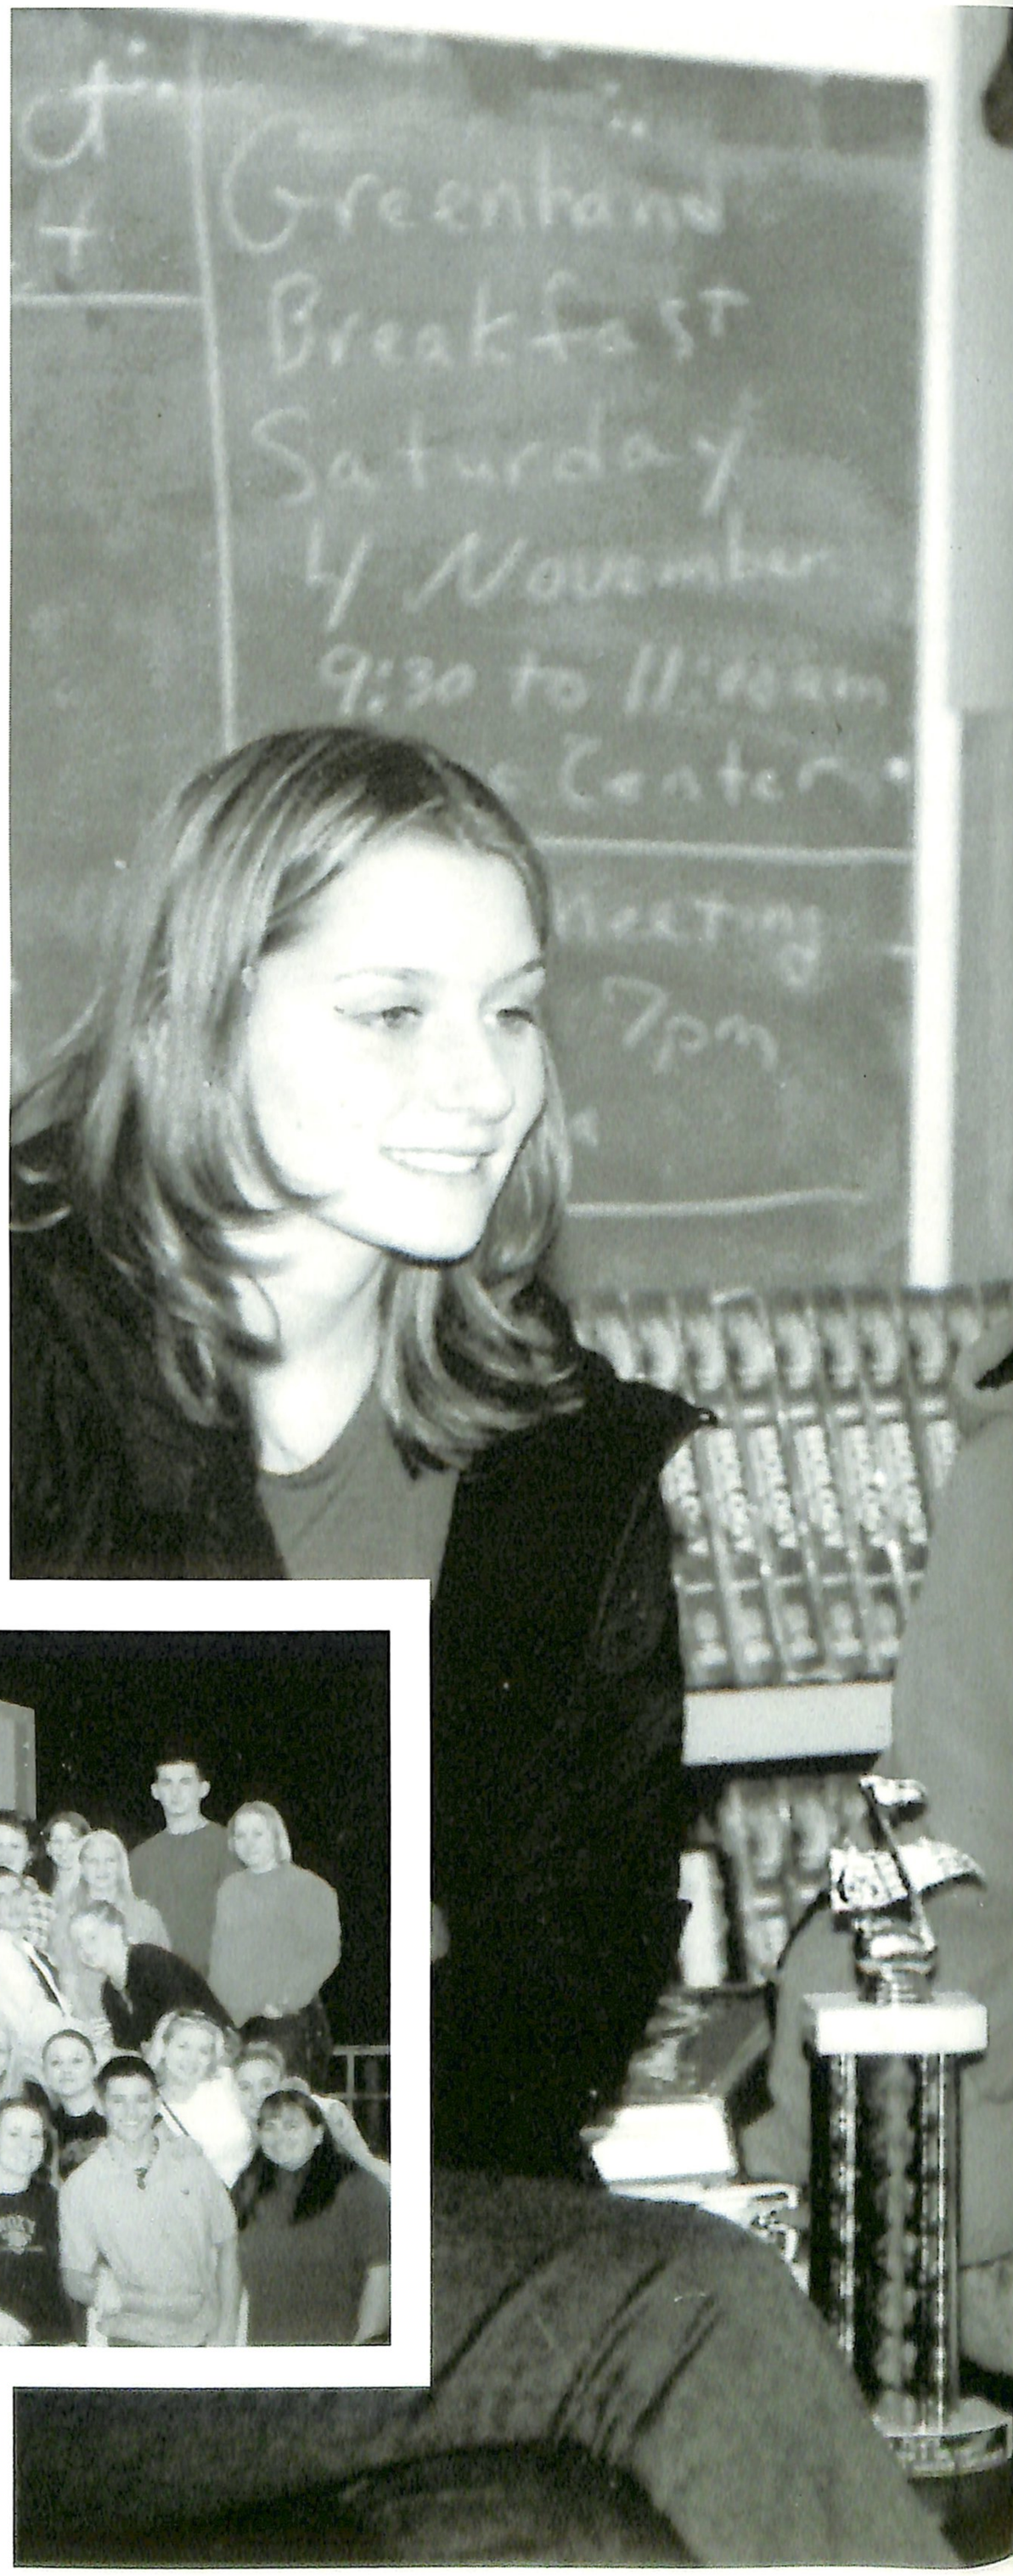

What is the best thing you have learned from the FFA?

"I've learned to raise animals and I have become more knowledgable of plant life."
-Scott McDonald '04

"How to take care of animals and to plant flowers in a garden."
-Britney Biggs '03

DECA Distributive Education Clubs of America

"I was inspired to join DECA because I saw my friends handle their money well. The best part of DECA are the conferences. I got to meet new people," said Rommel DeGuzman. His reasons for being a part of DECA were shared by many of the other aspiring entrepreneurs that were DECA members. "I definantely improved my skills in every area of marketing," said Roxanne Dizon. DECA provided its' members with a chance in pursuing a dream in business and marketing. Members of this popular club ran the Indian Outpost during lunch and before school to raise funds for DECA conferences and activities.

How do you apply the skills that you've learned in DECA your life ?

"The most important things I have learned form DECA is how to speak in front of a group of people and present myself professionally."

Leadership

This year the leadership class under went some major changes. From one advisor to the next the group finally found an activity's director in Mr. Vogapeol, an Armijo graduate. A new rubric system was introduced by ASB president Dana Carion. " This year was a transition year. I like to think we are paving the way," said Dana. The Leadership class still managed to put on very successful events such as: football and basketball homecoming, Wednesday Night Jam, prom, and the Senior Tea. Despite major changes the leadership class still managed to live up to it's impeccable reputation.

Governing Activity's High school

What Leadership event was your favorite?

"Football Homecoming, because I had a great time working on the float, especially with my class."
-Laura Kight 03

"Wednesday Night Jam, because all the classes came together and had a face off to see who was the best."
-Christopher Kubicka 04

Mr. Vogelpohl and the rally committee met at a morning meeting for leadership. "It was a challenge to try to get the crowd involved this year, but in the end I think we succeeded." The rally committee was one of the largest and most popular committees in leadership.

Laura Valcreal assisted Barron Cuadro with his lion outfit at football homecoming. "Being the lion was great. I think made the best lion there could have possibly been," said Barron. The preparation for the floats started long before homecoming day.

William Jones made preparations for the first rally of the year. "I get juiced up each time there's a rally because I like to support my school," said William. With new ideas, the leadership displayed how others can get involved and show school pride.

ROTC

Dressed in their uniforms on Thursdays, R.O.T.C. cadets were prepared to perform their weekly marching drills led by their OIF, also known as Officer in Charge. It was their time to shine through with the Pledge of Honor and 6 Corp Values vowed by them during their first year. "The core of the class taught me discipline, leadership skills, and helped me build my personality," said Junior Lawrence Hermano. R.O.T.C. divided its course into separate levels each providing the students with the preparation and knowledge of Aerospace components such as: civil, industrial, and military. With drill and sports competions yearly, the teams proved their hard earned skills to their competitors of Fairfield, Navato, and Oak Grove. A favored event by the Cadets was the R.O.T.C. ball. It was a time for them to enjoy themselves with their escort and be recognized for their advancements. The R.O.T.C. helped students develop thier leadership and disiplinary skills to use in their futures.

Reserve Officer Training Corps

What are your plans after graduating from the class?

"I plan on joining the Air Force after I graduate."
-Kristina Price 01

"I do not have any plans of joining the air-force after high school."
-Dexter Festejo 04

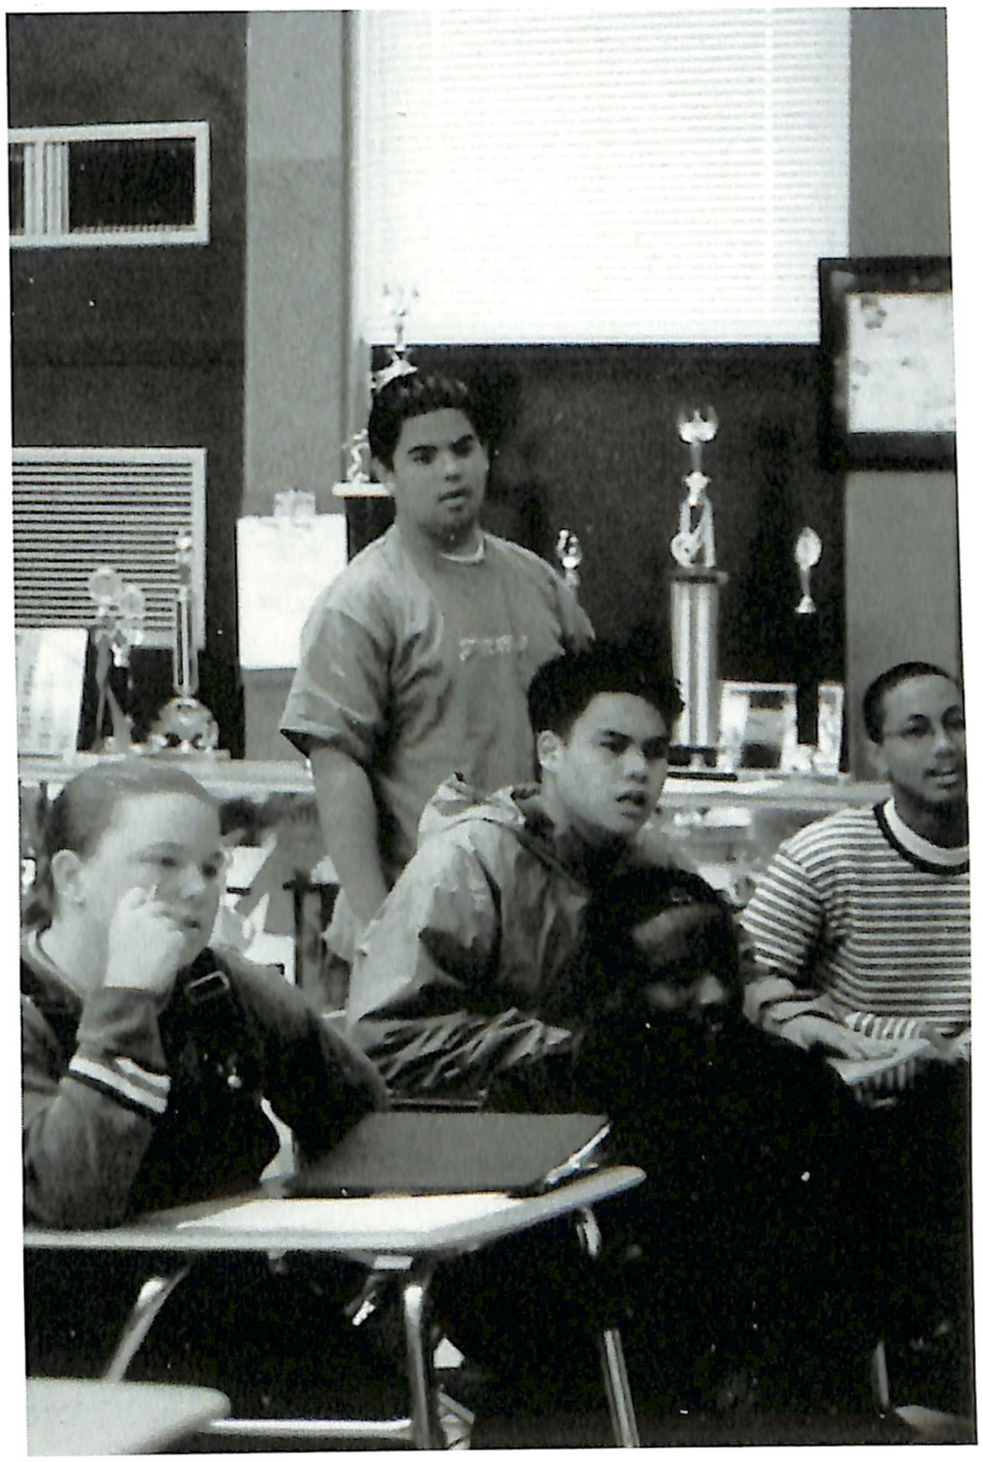

The ROTC marched at a local air force base for practice. "I joined because it looked interesting," said Ernie Catalan. Many ROTC memebers find military history curriculum in ROTC to be fasinating.

Superband and Colorguard

The Armijo Superband and color guard expierenced many changes in leadership through out this year. Despite the many transitions the group maintained their spirit and dedication and made the best of what was given to them. "We struggled in the begginning of the year but it has only made us stronger." Megan Shepard. On several weekends this past year the band had reviews in cities that were often two or three hours away. The trips lasted all day: however some memebers of the band raved about the memorable times had on the bus rides to their destinations. This year the superband and colorgurard found strength in unity.

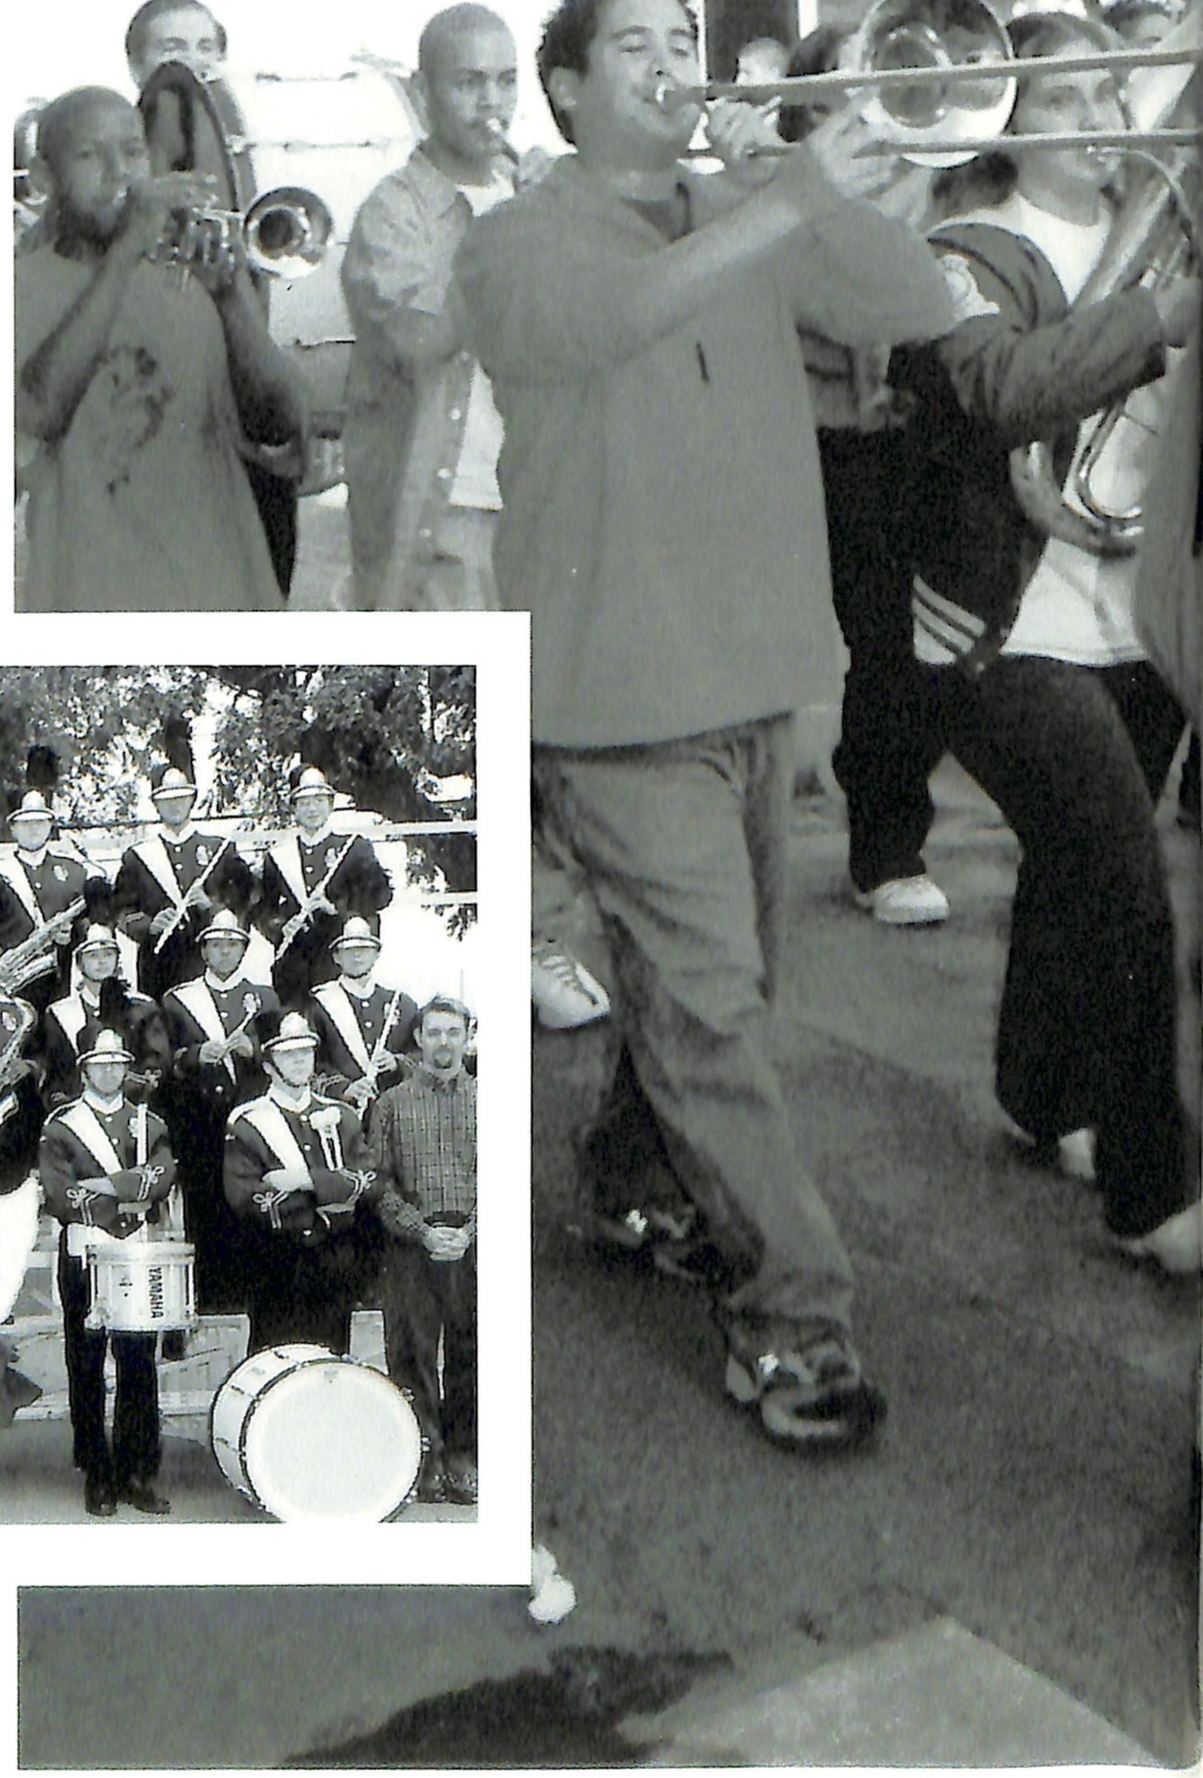

What is the best part of being in band?

A long journey has come to a close
The last of four and all watch you grow
Soccer has been your best friend
A connection with Pat, the "T dog's" man
On your way you'll go this fall
To another valley Sonoma calls
Freedom and studies by yourself
Don't leave the book on the shelf
No more short bus ahead for you
You'll control what you do
Be happy son, along the way
And remember we love you everyday
Through good and bad you won the fight
Just keep the faith and you'll be all right
This is your day "bud" you did your best
You made us proud like all the rest

Now the world is yours!

I'm leaving now to slay the foe-
Fight the battles high and low.
I'm leaving mom and dad, hear me go!
Please wish me luck today.
I've grown my wings, I want to fly.
Seize my victories where they lie.
I'm going, Mom and Dad, but please don't cry-
Just let me find my way.
I want to see and touch and hear,
Though there are dangers and fears,
I'll smile my smiles and dry my tears-
Please let me speak my say.
I'm off to find my world, my dreams,
Carve my niche, sew my seams,
Remember, as I sail my streams-
I'll love you, all the way.
Love Always,
Felesia Aniz Hall

Excitement and fear fill our hearts,
Soon a new way of life will start.
Thirteen years have almost passed,
But in our hearts the memories last.
We've been through it all,
And realized who are true friends are.
The ones that were there,
When no one else seemed to care.
As our Senior year comes to an end,
I want to say thanks for being true friends.

Best Friends

There was a child went forth every day,
And the first object he look'd upon, that object he became,
And that object became part of him for the day or a certain part of the day,
Or for many years or streching cycles of years.

Trucks and bubbles, Trasformers and Inhumanoids. The church with bricks sticking out this way and that. Alphanumeric and snowboards. Doug and Chris and Travis. And a beat up Tercel dressed to kill with seven year vinyl Roller coasters and airplanes. Mountains and oceans and lakes. Kneeboards, boogie boards and SNOWBOARDS, and Forum, X-Games and tennis games. Evan and Doug and Travis. A hand-me-down Taurus. Ans, at last. The Beastly Green Jeep.

Cameras and the stage. Snowblades and rafting, transformers and K'NEX. Chris and Doug and Evan. Star Wars. Star Trek and collecting Marvel Comics

Princess Bride and books from Redwall to Fitzgerald.
PEP and laughter and The Silver Grizzly. Hiking and rafting. History and opinions. Evan and Travis and Chris. Fly like an Eagle!

These become part of that child who went forth every day, And who now goes, and will always go forth every day. -Walt Whitman
Chris, Travis, Doug and Evan,
May your friendships and memories be so much a part of you who now go, and will always go forth every day.
With love,
Your Moms and Dads

I've got news for you, she is.
She's got the hottest trike in town.
That girl she holds her head up so high,

When she talks, I hear the revolution;
In her hips, there's revolution;
When she walks, the revolutions coming;
In a kiss, why there's the revolution."

Eternal Treasures

They're with you throughout the years,
Through happy moments or painful tears,
They'll always be your helping hand,
The only ones who truly understand.
They'll be the ones who will make you smile,
Who will make every minute in life worthwhile.
On Cloudy days they're the cleansing rain,
To stop the hurt and ease the pain.
On Sunny days They're sunlight's rays,
Boyfriends go, but they will stay.
When your lonely and in despair,
When you need the love and the care,
No matter why, when, or where,
They'll be with you... they'll be there.
They are worth every moment you spend,
Because they don't betray... they don't pretend.
It'll hurt when you go your separate ways,
When all you'll remember are those high school days.
Yet when you reunite, it'll be like before,
Only slightly better, because you'll get closer some more.
And they'll still be with you through the downpour,
Because that's really what true friends are for.
No matter what, I'll stay with you until the end,
Because in me you have a friend.

Do you remember the first time we met?
It seemed we came together in instant friendship.
We some how knew we could lean upon each other,
Depend upon one another.
It seemed as though we had always been friends.
As time has gone by, those feelings have grown
We have shared our most secret thoughts and dreams
We've helped each other through times
When we never thought we could endure,
And shared with each other the most memorable
Days of our lives.
For as long as I live,
You will always hold a place in my heart.
Our friendship will always be
A very important part of my life.
Our friendship is very unique;
It always has been.
I look forward to our future

Yes, c o 2001 , we've come a long way since the day of middle school, and for some of us, it goes back even further. For those of you who know, a majority of us have evolved from the Crystal Cougars to the Armijo Indians, and i'll never forget those days. Friends have come and gone (RIP for those who can't be with us at this important time in our lives) situations have changed, and we've grown mentally physically, and spiritually. For those who have stood behind me since day one, never doubted me, beared with me thu mood swings and held me when I cried, i luv you 4eva. I hope nothing but the best for the c o 2001... to the haters "I know exactly what you say when you walk away, but that's okay, cuz I don't let it get to me"... To the family, frenz, and loved ones, i love you all. (You know who you are) Let's see where I go from here...Bye for now, but not for long... Luv always... Dania "Call me D" Mallette

He's giving you the finger!", Expressly Portraits, "You get a scrap scum.", plus size, Somalia Child, SELFISH!, "I just hate fat-free... numnum.", chat rooms, rock heart, thug life, Why were we trying to be homies?, Mexican picture, highlighting hair for the first time, "Let me do your hair or I'll burn you with the curling iron.", High School: "My parents call you Wally...", Chevy's, "I don't want to sleep next to the wall!" "You have it, it's my bed!" "But we just painted it!", cat poo, trick or treating, "That lady took my candy! I was just joking!", swimming in the Dough Boy, getting ice cream from the ice cream man and hiding, Spaggeti-O's, Tupac, Mr. Mitchell's class, the Hell Pass, "Mr. Mitchell, I got to go. The devil sent me a pass. See? If I'm late, he'll be pissed.", Mr. Ortiz's class, the devil clock, "I have a 26 ...", long time no see, Econ with Mr. Lambrech, the worst day of my life, thugs that Tracy likes, blue and black sock, "I got dressed in the dark!", "He doesn't even know how to use a mechanical pencil!", classes with Cristina, our "Science Faire Project", lunch with Shannon in the Neon, and then the truck, slumber parties and hooker dancing, years of memories and abuse. Bad love is better than no love. Trace- you are Pink and I am Margret Cho.
